MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

Defendant Richard Ayvazyan, through undersigned counsel, seeks to preclude the government from introducing the testimony of Marylee Robinson as a summary witness. Ms. Robinson is not a percipient fact witness; she is a CPA hired by the government to “trace” loan funds and “explain . . . transactions to the jury.” Because Ms. Robinson has no first-hand knowledge of the events at issue in this case, she cannot testify under Rule 602 or 701. The government does not intend to qualify Ms. Robinson as an expert, and she therefore cannot testify under Rule 702.

Both Ms. Robinson’s anticipated testimony and the summary charts the government proposes using during that testimony are also unfairly prejudicial and should be excluded under Rule 403. The majority of the evidence on which the summary charts are based concerns loans that are not charged in the indictment.

Ms. Robinson’s testimony is unduly prejudicial because it will give the imprimatur of a purportedly independent certified public accountant to contested issues at trial, which will improperly color the jury’s view of the evidence to be admitted at trial. Ms. Robinson’s testimony will also provide the government what amounts to a second closing argument—her anticipated testimony amounts to an argument about the significance of transactions central to the government’s case. The Court should decline to let Ms. Robinson usurp the role of the jury and should exclude her testimony.

If the Court permits Ms. Robinson to testify, her testimony and summary charts should be limited to the loans charged in the superseding indictment. The government has moved to present a redacted superseding indictment at trial, which eliminates the government’s burden to prove that the conspiracy at issue involved the submission of 151 PPP and EIDL loan applications. That deletion leaves only the seventeen loans charged in the overt acts or the wire and bank fraud counts of the indictment. Yet the summary charts include at least 60 other PPP and EIDL loan applications that are not charged in the indictment. The government should not be permitted to change its

1 theory of the conspiracy at the last minute, but then call a summary witness to introduce 2 evidence related to conduct now outside the conspiracy charged in the indictment.

3 I. STATEMENT OF FACTS

4 On May 18, 2021, the government informed defendants that it intends to “call 5 Marylee Robinson, Managing Director at Stout Risius Ross, LLC, as a summary 6 witness to provide testimony at trial about certain financial transactions.” Ex. A to 7 Declaration of Ashwin Ram (“Ram Decl.”), 5/18/21 Letter from Scott Paetty at 2. The 8 government anticipates that Ms. Robinson will “testify about, among other things, her 9 analysis of relevant financial transactions. Ms. Robinson will base her testimony 10 primarily upon a review of bank and brokerage account records, as well as accounting 11 and other business records from escrow companies and vendors.” Id. (emphasis 12 added). The government further claimed that Ms. Robinson will “trace” loan proceeds 13 and “explain . . . transactions to the jury.” Defendants pushed the government to clarify 14 what “other things” Ms. Robinson intended to testify about and what additional 15 information would form the basis for her testimony, but the government refused to 16 provide defendants with that information. Ram Decl. Ex. B, 5/24/2021 Email Chain 17 between the government and defense counsel.

18 Despite the technical nature of her anticipated testimony and the fact that Ms.
19 Robinson intends to “trace” funds and “explain” transactions to the jury, the 20 government does not intend to call Ms. Robinson as an expert witness. Ex. A at 2. Ms.
21 Robinson “specializes in providing expert testimony and litigation consulting services, 22 including . . . conducting fraud and forensic accounting investigations.”

23 <https://www.stout.com/en/professionals/marylee-robinson>. Ms. Robinson’s list of 24 licenses and designations includes Certified Public Accountant (CPA), Certified in 25 Financial Forensics (CFF) and Certified Fraud Examiner (CFE). Id. Ms. Robinson’s 26 webpage also claims “[h]er fraud and forensic accounting experience includes 27 assistance to the Department of Justice in a series of investigations of corporate 28 executives indicted for white collar crimes in both the banking and healthcare

1 industries.”

2 On May 21, 2021, the parties appeared before the Court to discuss pre-trial 3 issues. During that hearing, the Court discussed the summary witness with the 4 government, and told the government that it intended to provide defendants with draft 5 summary charts before the June 1, 2021 exhibit deadline, which would include trial
6 exhibits to support the basis for the summary charts. Ram. Decl. Ex. C 5/21/21 Hr’g 7 Tr. at 9:17-11:8. The government did not.

8 On the evening of June 1, 2021, the government produced to defendants two sets 9 of “draft” summary chart exhibits that it proposed to use during Ms. Robinson’s 10 testimony, one described as “Tracing,” the other described as “Disaster Relief Loan 11 Applications.” See Ram Decl. Exs. D and E. Despite producing these charts on the 12 deadline for trial exhibits, the government described the charts as “drafts” that the 13 defendant is prohibited from relying upon or using under the Draft Exhibit Agreement, 14 and reserved their right to change the charts, enumerating seven possible sets of 15 changes that could still be made. See Ram Decl. Ex. F, June 1, 2021 email from the 16 government to defense counsel.

17 On June 4, 2021, the government filed a motion to use a redacted superseding 18 indictment at trial. Dkt. 422. The government requested to redact paragraph 32 of the 19 indictment, which included the government’s allegation that the conspiracy at issue 20 involved applying for 151 PPP and EIDL loans. Id. at 1. The government seeks the 21 redaction because paragraph 32 contains “allegations that the government does not 22 intend to prove up at trial and because it assists the government in streamlining the 23 presentation of evidence at trial.” Id. at 2.

24 II. LEGAL STANDARD

25 A party may use a motion in limine to exclude inadmissible or prejudicial 26 evidence before it is actually introduced at trial. See Luce v. United States, 469 U.S. 38, 27 40 n.2 (1984). “[A] motion in limine is an important tool available to the trial judge to 28 ensure the expeditious and evenhanded management of the trial proceedings.” Jonasson

1 v. Lutheran Child & Family Servs., 115 F.3d 436, 440 (7th Cir. 1997). “A motion in 2 limine allows the parties to resolve evidentiary disputes before trial and avoids 3 potentially prejudicial evidence being presented in front of the jury, thereby relieving 4 the trial judge from the formidable task of neutralizing the taint of prejudicial 5 evidence.” United States v. Young, No. CR 10-cr-923 (SJO), 2019 WL 9518226, at *2 6 (C.D. Cal. Apr. 17, 2019) (citing Brodit v. Cambra, 350 F.3d 985, 1004-05 (9th Cir.
7 2003)).

8 Like all witnesses, summary witnesses who testify for the government may do so 9 based only on personal knowledge. Fed. R. Evid. 602, 701. The Ninth Circuit has 10 “noted the danger of admitting testimony of summary witnesses who summarize 11 evidence, including oral testimony, previously admitted in the same trial.” United States 12 v. Leon-Reyes, 177 F.3d 816, 819 (9th Cir. 1999) (citing United States v. Baker, 10 F.3d 13 1374, 1412 (9th Cir. 1993) (noting that summary witnesses should only be allowed in 14 “exceptional cases” because the credibility of summary witnesses may be substituted 15 for the credibility of the evidence summarized) (overruled on other grounds in United 16 States v. Nordby, 225 F.3d 1053, 1059 (9th Cir. 2000)). Given this risk, summary 17 charts “must be scrutinized by the trial court to ensure that they are accurate, complete, 18 not unduly prejudicial, limited to the relevant issues, and confined by appropriate jury 19 instructions.” Id. at 820.

20 Federal Rule of Evidence 403 allows the Court to “exclude relevant evidence if 21 its probative value is substantially outweighed by a danger of . . . unfair prejudice, 22 confusing the issues, misleading the jury, undue delay, wasting time, or needlessly 23 presenting cumulative evidence.”

24 III. ARGUMENT

25 A. The Government Has Not Met the Basic Requirements for Admission 26 of Summary Charts Under Rule 1006.

27 The Summary Charts should be excluded because the government has not met 28 either the Rule’s or the Ninth Circuit’s basic prerequisites for admitting summary

1 charts. First, Rule 1006 permits summary charts only “to prove the content of 2 voluminous writings, recordings, or photographs that cannot be conveniently examined 3 in court.” Here, the government has redacted the superseding indictment in a way that 4 limits the evidence the government must present at trial to evidence related to the 17 5 loans actually charged in the indictment. The loan applications and bank records 6 related to those 17 loans is not so voluminous that they could not be conveniently
7 examined in court. And, as described more fully below, introducing the bank records 8 themselves, as opposed to the government’s biased interpretation of the bank records 9 through a purportedly independent witness, would permit the jury to consider all 10 relevant evidence and draw conclusions from that evidence, consistent with the role the 11 jury serves.

12 Second, “the proponent of a summary must demonstrate the admissibility of the 13 underlying writings or records summarized, as a condition precedent to introduction of 14 the summary into evidence under Rule 1006.” United States v. Johnson, 594 F.2d 15 1253, 1257 (9th Cir. 1979); United States v. Cotton, 203 F.3d 833 (9th Cir. 1999) (“We 16 agree that the summary should not have been received in evidence because the 17 government did not establish that the information summarized was admissible.”). Here, 18 the summary charts rely on exhibits that the government has yet to produce to 19 defendants, despite the fact that the government’s exhibits were due on June 1.¹ 20 Moreover, the summary charts claim to rely on exhibits that were not included on the 21 government’s witness list. When defense counsel notified the government of this issue, 22 the government claimed the citations to non-existent exhibits were a mistake and that 23

24 ¹ Instead of producing exhibits to defendants on June 1, the government produced an excel file 25 containing lists of bates numbers that correspond to the government’s exhibits. The majority of the 26 exhibits are compilations of multiple documents produced in discovery. Given the extraordinary 27 amount of time it would take defendants to locate and compile the thousands of documents on the 28 government’s witness list, defendants requested that the government provide them with electronic versions of their exhibits. The government agreed to do so, and has begun to produce those electronic binders, but as of the date of this filing, still has not produced many of the electronic exhibits to defendants, including most of the electronic exhibits on which the summary chart is allegedly based.

1 they would produce updated summary witness charts to defendants. As of the date of 2 this filing, they have not done so. See Ram Decl. Ex. G, June 5, 2021 email exchange
3 between defense counsel and the government. Given that the summary charts produced 4 by the Court’s June 1, 2021 deadline cite exhibits that have not been produced in 5 discovery and others that are clearly inadmissible, the government has not established 6 the admissibility of evidence underlying the summary charts.

7 The summary charts also contain images that have not been produced in 8 discovery and that are not admissible as evidence. For example, the Tracing chart 9 contains photos of houses on pages 5 through 7, but the source for these photos is not 10 documents produced in discovery or the government’s proposed exhibit list. Ex. D at 11 5-6. Instead, the government claims the images are pulled from Zillow.com, a real 12 estate listing website. The government has not disclosed how the images were obtained, 13 when, by whom, or what they purported to be, and the images were not included on the 14 government’s exhibit list. They are therefore inadmissible as part of a summary chart.
15 The government’s failure to meet the basic prerequisites for introducing the summary 16 charts is only the tip of the iceberg when it comes to deficiencies and issue with the 17 summary charts and the summary witness’s proposed testimony.

18 B. Ms. Robinson is Not A Percipient Fact Witness and Her Testimony
19 Should be Precluded.

20 Ms. Robinson’s testimony should be excluded because it will not be based on 21 personal knowledge, as required by Federal Rules of Evidence 602 and 701. See United 22 States v. Echols, 574 F. App’x 350, 356 (5th Cir. 2014) (discussing remedy for 23 improper summary witness testimony, stating “a witness who testifies beyond his 24 knowledge, or into topics that are unhelpful or the province of others should be cabined 25 by a multitude of precise rules, such as Rule 403 (“unfair prejudice, confusing the 26 issues, misleading the jury”), Rule 601 (competency), Rule 602 (requirement of 27 personal knowledge), and Rule 701 (scope of lay witness opinion testimony)”). The 28 Ninth Circuit allows summary witnesses to testify when those witnesses are

1 summarizing their personal knowledge gained by participating in their investigation of 2 a case. See, e.g., United States v. Aubrey, 800 F.3d 1115 (9th Cir. 2015) (finding that 3 HUD auditor was properly permitted to testify about his investigation where the district 4 court “restricted his testimony to the areas in which he had personal knowledge (the 5 documents, investigation, and the methods he used to prepare his summary) and 6 prevented him from providing in-depth analysis of various accounting methods.”). No 7 such allowance is made for witnesses who the government merely proposes to brief on 8 the investigation. Nor should one be. The government is effectively feeding its 9 conclusions through a purportedly independent person in order to parrot them to the 10 jury.

11 Ms. Robinson did not participate in the government’s investigation of the charges 12 alleged in the indictment. Instead, Ms. Robinson has assumed the role of an expert 13 witness while dodging the rigorous standards applied to expert testimony under Rules 14 16(a)(1)(G) and 702. Without any personal involvement in, or knowledge of, the 15 investigation into the charges in the indictment, Ms. Robinson took exhibits chosen by 16 the government and worked those exhibits into charts summarizing the government’s 17 theory of the case. This is problematic because, as the Ninth Circuit has noted, 18 “[s]ummaries are normally prepared by an interested party and therefore may not be 19 completely accurate or may be tainted with the preparing party’s bias.” Leon-Reyes, 20 177 F.3d at 820. The risk of inaccuracy and taint skyrockets when the witness has no 21 independent knowledge of the facts at issue, and instead relies on documents chosen by 22 the government to shape their understanding of the case, and then proposes to testify as 23 a fact witness. It’s hard to see how the charts created by Ms. Robinson could not be 24 infused with the government’s bias, particularly given her complete lack of knowledge 25 into the investigation or factual background of this case. Ms. Robinson’s testimony can 26
27
28

1 add nothing except the government’s gloss on the case, and is thus inadmissible under 2 Rules 602 and 701.²

3 C. Ms. Robinson’s Proposed Testimony is More Prejudicial Than 4 Probative and Should Be Excluded Under Rule 403.

5 Even if the Court finds that Ms. Robinson’s testimony is admissible under Rule 6 602 and 701, it should be excluded under Rule 403. The Ninth Circuit recognizes “the 7 danger” that summary witness testimony poses at trial due to the potential unfair 8 prejudice to the defendant. Leon-Reyes, 177 F.3d at 819 (9th Cir. 1999). Any relevance
9 to Ms. Robinson’s testimony is substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair 10 prejudice to defendants, as well as the danger of confusing the issues for the jury, 11 misleading the jury and wasting time by presenting evidence of conduct irrelevant to 12 the indictment. Fed. R. Evid. 403.

13 1. Ms. Robinson’s Professional Qualifications and History as an 14 Expert Witness Make Her Testimony Unduly Prejudicial

15 Ms. Robinson’s professional qualifications and history of testifying as an expert 16 on behalf of the Department of Justice will improperly influence the jury’s view of the 17 evidence in the summary charts, unduly prejudicing the defendants. The Supreme 18 Court has admonished courts to guard against the risk that charts can attain “an 19 existence of their own, independent of the evidence which gave rise to them.” See 20 Holland v. United States, 348 U.S. 121, 128 (1954). That risk is multiplied where, as 21 here, the government intends to introduce the testimony of a professional expert witness

22 ² Ms. Robinson is a hired expert who appears to charge professional fees. The fact that the 23 government is (presumably) paying those fees mandates the conclusion that she is an expert. DOJ 24 prohibits paying fact witnesses more than $40 per day. Department of Justice, Fees and Expenses of 25 Witnesses (FY 2018), <https://www.justice.gov/file/969041/download> (“Fact witnesses testify as to 26 events or facts about which they have personal knowledge. These witnesses are paid a statutorily 27 established rate of $40 per day plus reasonable amounts for travel and certain other costs associated 28 with their appearance. Expert witnesses provide technical or scientific testimony and are compensated based on negotiations with the respective Federal Government attorney”). The defendants respectfully submit that—although the government has not produced this information in discovery—it is likely that Ms. Robinson is not being compensated consistently with DOJ’s rules for compensating fact witnesses.

1 under the guise of a percipient fact witness. Coming from a certified public account, 2 the jury might treat the summary evidence as additional or corroborative evidence that 3 unfairly strengthens the government's case. Allowing Ms. Robinson to testify to the 4 contents of the summary charts will place the imprimatur of a certified public 5 accountant on contested issues at trial and improperly color the jury's view of evidence 6 and testimony, causing undue prejudice to defendants.

7 Ms. Robinson's testimony should also be excluded because the summary charts 8 contain arguments that should be limited to the government's opening and closing 9 statements. The government has declined to inform the defendants of the order of its 10 witnesses, so defendants do not know if Ms. Robinson will be an "overview witness" 11 testifying at the beginning of trial, or a summary witness testifying near the close of the 12 government's case. Either scenario would be unfairly prejudicial to defendants.

13 To the extent that the government intends to call Ms. Robinson as one of its first 14 few witnesses, that overview testimony would be highly prejudicial and should be 15 excluded. While the Ninth Circuit has not directly addressed so-called "overview 16 witnesses," circuit courts across the country have "condemn[ed] the practice of having 17 a case agent offer a summary opinion as to culpability before any evidence to support 18 such a conclusion has been presented for jury review." United States v. Garcia, 413 19 F.3d 201, 214 (2d Cir. 2005) (holding even if the disputed testimony were considered 20 summary evidence, such testimony would be improper and therefore not qualify as 21 "helpful" to the jury); United States v. Griffin, 324 F.3d 330, 349 (5th Cir. 2003) 22 ("unequivocally condemn[ing]" the use of an overview witness "as a tool employed by 23 the government to paint a picture of guilt before the evidence has been introduced."); 24 United States v. Casas, 356 F.3d 104, 119 (1st Cir. 2004); United States v. Brooks, 736 25 F.3d 921, 930 (10th Cir. 2013) ("[P]otential problems include the government's ability 26 (1) to spin the evidence in its favor before it is admitted (assuming it is ever admitted), 27 (2) to give its official imprimatur to certain evidence, and (3) to allow its witnesses 28 (usually law enforcement) to testify on matters about which they have no personal

1 knowledge or that are based on hearsay.”); United States v. Moore, 651 F.3d 30, 60
2 (D.C. Cir. 2011) (“Overview testimony offers [the prosecution] an opportunity to 3 poison the jury’s mind against the defendant or to recite items of highly questionable 4 evidence.”) (citation and internal quotation marks omitted).

5 Should Ms. Robinson testify as a summary witness at the end of the 6 government’s case, Ms. Robinson’s testimony should be excluded because the 7 summary charts contain interpretations and conclusions that mirror the government’s 8 likely closing arguments. “The use of summary evidence serves an important purpose, 9 but that purpose is not simply to allow the Government to repeat its entire case-in-chief 10 shortly before jury deliberations.” United States v. Fullwood, 342 F.3d 409, 413 (5th 11 Cir. 2003). Allowing Ms. Robinson to testify would essentially give the government a 12 second closing argument, which is an impermissible use of a summary witness. Not 13 only should the court prohibit Ms. Robinson from testifying, the defendants respectfully 14 request that the Court preclude the government from using summary charts at all.

15 2. The Probative Value of the Summary Charts is Substantially 16 Outweighed by the Risks of Wasting the Jury and Court’s Time

17 The charts contain irrelevant information. The government has moved to present 18 a redacted superseding indictment at trial, which leaves only the seventeen loans 19 charged in the overt acts and the wire and bank fraud counts of the indictment. Yet the 20 summary charts include at least 60 other PPP and EIDL loan applications that are not 21 charged in the indictment. Compare Superseding Indictment (generally) with Ram 22 Decl. Ex. E, Disaster Relief Loan Application Summary Chart.³ Pages three and four of 23 the Disaster Relief Loan Application Summary Chart are misleadingly titled “Example 24 Loans Applied for by Companies Included in First Superseding Indictment,” which 25 implies that each of the loans on those pages was charged in the indictment. But in 26 fact, most of the loans on those two pages are not mentioned in the indictment. The 27 government is attempting to have their cake and eat it too, and the Court should not

28 ³

1 countenance it. Either the conspiracy at issue in this case involved the submission of 2 151 PPP and EIDL loan applications (see Superseding Ind. ¶ 32), in which case the 3 superseding indictment should not be redacted, or the conspiracy concerns the 17 loans 4 included in the redacted superseding indictment, and the other loan applications are 5 irrelevant. Any limited relevance the additional loan applications could have is 6 substantially outweighed by the danger of wasting both the jury's and Court's time by 7 allowing the summary witness to testify about 60 loans that were not charged in the 8 indictment. This is sufficient grounds to exclude the summary charts under Rule 403, 9 but it is far from the only grounds.

10 3. The Summary Chart Exhibits on Which Ms. Robinson Intends 11 to Rely Are Unduly Prejudicial and Should Be Excluded.

12 The presentation of evidence in the summary charts is unduly prejudicial. As 13 noted above, the Ninth Circuit has cautioned that, because summary charts are prepared 14 by an interested party, they “may not be completely accurate or may be tainted with the 15 preparing party's bias.” United States v. Leon-Reyes, 177 F.3d 816, 820 (9th Cir. 1999).
16 Recognizing the inherent danger of prejudice from summary charts, the Fifth Circuit 17 has cautioned that “[w]henver possible, such charts should be confined in their 18 preparation to strictly mathematical computations, subject to detailed explanation upon 19 the trial by the testimony of expert government witnesses, and they should not be 20 encumbered by such impressive, conclusionary captions[.]” Lloyd v. United States, 226 21 F.2d 9 (5th Cir. 1955). The charts at issue here go well beyond mathematical 22 computations or simple summaries of voluminous evidence, and are unduly prejudicial 23 for the reasons set forth below.

24 First, the charts are inflammatory. The pages in the Tracing Chart exhibit include 25 inflammatory photos of homes the government alleges were purchased with PPP and 26 EIDL loan funds. Instead of simply using names for the defendants in the charts, the 27 government has included unflattering photos of the named defendants, the only purpose 28 of which can be to prejudice the jury against the defendants. See, e.g., United States v.

George, 160 F. App'x 450, 456 (6th Cir. 2005) (“Even if relevant, a mug shot tends to make people believe that the person is “bad,” and therefore can be unfairly prejudicial. Moreover, the visual impact of a mug shot, apart from mere references to a prior conviction, can leave a lasting, although illegitimate, impact on the jury.”).

Second, the charts are argumentative. The majority of the Tracing chart pages are titled “Use of EIDL/PPP Funds” and purport to show transfers of money between entities that received loan funds and other businesses. If accurate, these transfers should appear on the bank records the government claims to be basing the summary on, but instead of using images of bank records—which would give the jury the ability to see all transactions into and out of a bank account and assess for themselves whether and how PPP/EIDL loan funds were spent—the government has selected certain transactions to highlight devoid of any qualifying information. The inaccuracy of this method is made clear by page 11 of the summary chart, a portion of which is shown below:

Anna Dzukaeva – X1441 Account Activity August 01, 2020 – January 22, 2021					DRAFT
Transaction Date	Payee/Payor	Deposit Amount	Withdrawal Amount	Balance
08/01/20	Prior Month Ending Balance	$ -	$ -	$ 184,605.46
08/04/20	Fay Servicing	-	14,566.67	170,038.79
08/17/20	Newtek Small Business Finance (PPP)	244,500.00	-	414,538.79
08/18/20	Fay Servicing	-	14,566.67	399,972.12
08/27/20	Fay Servicing	-	16,751.67	383,220.45
08/31/20	Interest	23.75	-	383,244.20
08/31/20	Chrysler Capital	-	600.00	382,644.20
09/01/20	Anna Dzukaeva (X3531)	-	23,000.00	359,644.20
09/15/20	ABC Realty Advisors Inc (X2061)	-	45,000.00	314,644.20
09/24/20	Secureline Realty & Funding Inc	-	48,000.00	266,644.20
09/30/20	Interest	26.34	-	266,670.54
10/07/20	Bed Bath & Beyond	-	267.08	266,403.46

The government chose to highlight that a PPP loan was deposited into Anna Dzukaeva’s bank account, and then bolded two transactions totaling $93,000 leaving that account after the loan proceeds were received. But the image shows in the top

1 right corner that Ms. Dzukaeva had $170,000 in her account before any PPP loan funds 2 were deposited, which is more than enough to cover the transfers out of the account.
3 The jury will be able to consider this account record and conclude that the funds 4 transferred out of the account were not in fact PPP loan funds. Yet every other page of 5 the Tracing Exhibits excludes this type of detailed transaction information, instead 6 drawing all of the jury's conclusions for them, without presenting the evidence that 7 supports those conclusions. Introducing charts that usurp the role of the jury altogether 8 is unduly prejudicial to defendants.

9 The Tracing charts also contain a page titled "Transactions Between Identified 10 Parties," which shows entities and individuals as bubbles, and purports to show the 11 movement of money between those entities and individuals. This page is unduly 12 prejudicial. The title of the chart is unclear and argumentative, as the government has 13 not explained what "Identified Parties" means, but the words imply special significance 14 to the entities and people in the chart. Such an argumentative heading could lead the 15 jury to give undue weight to the information on the page, prejudicing defendants. The 16 page also includes the names of individuals and entities who are not named in the 17 indictment, and in some cases, do not appear in the list of loans on which the chart is 18 allegedly based. Given the breadth of information on this chart, Ms. Robinson's 19 explanation of the chart will likely veer into conclusory arguments about the movement 20 of funds, which would be unduly prejudicial to defendants since Ms. Robinson would 21 be usurping the role of the jury.

22 Finally, the summary charts do not contain straightforward presentations of facts, 23 while presenting the ultimate conclusions the government intends to argue to the jury.
24 But the government is not permitted to use summary charts to get a second bite at their 25 closing argument. It would be unduly prejudicial for the government to present the 26 charts to the jury as evidence, when, in fact, the charts are argument.
27
28

1 Given the many ways that the charts are unduly prejudicial to defendants, the 2 defendants respectfully request that the Court exclude the summary charts, and the 3 testimony of Ms. Robinson, under Rule 403.

4 D. Should the Court Permit Ms. Robinson to Testify as a Summary
5 Witness, Her Testimony Should Be Limited to Loans Specifically 6 Identified in the Indictment, Proper Limiting Instructions Should Be 7 Given, and the Charts Should Not Be Admitted Into Evidence.

8 If the Court permits Ms. Robinson to testify as a summary witness, significant 9 limits should be placed on her testimony.

10 First, Ms. Robinson's testimony and the summary charts she presents should be 11 limited to loans charged in the superseding indictment. Testimony about applications 12 or loans not charged in the indictment is irrelevant and therefore inadmissible under 13 Federal Rule of Evidence 401. Furthermore, as discussed above, allowing Ms.
14 Robinson to testify about conduct not at issue in this case would waste both the court 15 and the jury's time, and such testimony should be excluded under Rule 403.

16 Second, limiting instructions must be given during Ms. Robinson's testimony to 17 ensure that the jury understands how to interpret Ms. Robinson's testimony, and the 18 weight to ascribe to that testimony. United States v. Krasn, 614 F.2d 1229, 1238 (9th 19 Cir. 1980) (approving of court giving "a limiting instruction to the jury cautioning them 20 not to give undue weight to the charts since they were not evidence or proof of any 21 facts themselves").

22 Finally, even if Ms. Robinson is permitted to use the summary charts during her 23 testimony, the charts should not be admitted into evidence and should not be given to 24 the jury during their deliberations. The Ninth Circuit has found that where charts are 25 used to aid witness testimony, they should not be submitted to the jury. United States v.
26 Abbas, 504 F.2d 123 (9th Cir. 1974), cert. denied, 421 U.S. 988; United States v.
27 Bundy, No. 216CR00046GMNPAL, 2017 WL 549593, at *2 (D. Nev. Feb. 8, 2017) 28

1 (“The Court rejects the Government’s argument for admission of the summary exhibits 2 as secondary evidence to the underlying record[.]”).

3 IV. CONCLUSION

4 For the foregoing reasons, the Court should preclude Ms. Robinson’s testimony 5 and the introduction of the summary chart exhibits, or, if Ms. Robinson’s testimony is 6 admitted, the Court should limit her testimony to the loans charged in the indictment, 7 give limiting instructions during Ms. Robinsons’ testimony, and refuse to submit the 8 summary charts to the jury.
