Dear judge Convington

I am the Grandmother of David Antonetti. I'm writing to help with better understanding of my Grandson's character. I was very surprised and depressed that he has been found guilty of the allegations charged against him.

I am a Rochester Police Department Police Officer, 22 years of service. While he was growing up I've always stayed in contact despite living in New York. He is a passionate young man, A great father and always shown respect in everyday life. David always had a passion for Dancing & Videography.

In light of the current situation, David Antonetti has expressed genuine remorse and is committed to making amends. He understands the severity of his actions and is eager to undertake the necessary steps to ensure a positive change.

Given David's genuine remorse and his commitment to positive change, I respectfully ask that you consider alternative sentencing options that would allow David to continue contributing to their community and family. I firmly believe that with the right guidance and support, David will turn this experience into a pivotal moment for personal growth and redemption.

I am grateful for your time and consideration of this letter. I am willing to provide any further information should you find it necessary.

Sincerely,

Alice Torres

Dear to whom this may concern,

I grew up with my older brother David, we have always been close. Ever since we were young he's always shown me a soft love a little sister always aspired to have. I looked up to him growing up. Anything that I needed from David he never hesitated to be there for me regardless of the circumstances. My older brother is a genuine soul that's misunderstood. I witnessed David getting into videography as a hobby that turned into a side job for him. The passion that he has for videography is the same passion that he has to be the best father he aspires to be. There's never a conversation where David doesn't mention or show me a picture of his daughter, my niece. My older brother is an intelligent young man with genuine intentions. He's consistent and motivated to become better, this is something he has taught me growing up.

David started to create belief within himself and worked out as an outlet from his challenges that he has faced and started working at a job at JD Sports that he loved. From working on his passion with videography to working out in his spare time and working at JD Sports to fund his passion, David was on the right track to growing into the man that God wants him to become. There's 2 most important dates in your life, the day that you're born and the day you find out why. I believe that my brother was in the middle of finding his purpose. David is a young man that wants to grow, I know this because we are close, I see a side of him that nobody else does and he not only talks about it but his actions prove it as well. He's been the same David to me since we were young, my brother hung out with the wrong people at the wrong time, he understands who you surround yourself with is who you become.

I ask that you read this letter from my point of view, in the point of view of his little sister who knows David more than anybody else. He is not who he's being portrayed to be, I know he will exceed these expectations from society. I appreciate you taking the time and reading this letter on the behalf of my brother.

Sincerely,

Alyssa Morales

To Whom It May Concern

Your Honor

My name is Frances Cortes and met David through his parents. I have known David for five years and he is like a nephew to me. I am writing this letter in support of David Antonetti.

The young man that I know for the past five years does not act, look or appear to me, as a person to have committed the offenses he is being charge of. David is a very respectful young man. He is quite and passive and kept to himself. He always worked hard. He was always home or working. He always stayed away from trouble.

The person I know loves to spend time with his family and goes out of his way for his family. He is a caring person and is very helpful and will always help his friend and family.

Sincerely yours,
Frances Cortes

Your Honour, I am the Sister in Law of David Antonetti. I am hoping this letter will better help understand the Character and who he is.

. I have known David for over four years and he has been nothing but helpful with my relationship with his brother. I've always seen him to be a hardworking individual. David puts out loyalty, respectfulness and gratitude to his community. For as long as I've known him, He's always been trying to connect with his daughter. Due to unforeseen circumstances, with his daughter are not the best. I have seen him work towards making things better before he was incarcerated. I hope this letter urges the court to give David the leniency he needs to come back to the community and shine his light like he did before.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Isley Alicea

Your Honor

I am writing to you as the stepfather of David, and I want to share some important things about my son. I have raised David since he was one year old, and in that time, I've seen him grow into a young man with so much potential and a good heart.

David has always had a passion for video editing and filmmaking. He spends hours working on his projects, and it's clear that this is something he loves and is dedicated to. He also enjoys playing sports, and through that, he's learned discipline, teamwork, and the value of perseverance.

I understand that David has made mistakes, but I believe in his ability to change and grow from this experience. He is a good person at his core, and I know he regrets the actions that brought him to this point. I hope the court can consider that he has the potential to use his skills in a positive way and contribute meaningfully to society.

As his stepfather, I will continue to support him and guide him as best as I can. I believe with the right support and opportunities, David can turn his life around. I kindly ask for leniency in his sentencing so that he can have the chance to learn from his mistakes and build a better future.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Luis Morales

Dear Judge Convington,

I am writing this letter on behalf of my son, David, who is currently facing legal issues. As his parent, I would like to provide some background about David's life, the struggles he has faced, and his character in hopes that it may give you a clearer understanding of who he is.

David was diagnosed with ADHD and intellectual behavior at the age of six. From a young age, he struggled with these challenges, particularly in school. However, with the help of medication, he managed to focus and function well in many aspects of life. David has always been a sweet and loving boy, full of life and joy. His smile lights up any room he walks into, and he has always had a positive outlook on life, even during difficult times. We moved to Florida when David was in the 9th grade, and although he was starting over in a new state with a new school and no friends, he remained resilient. Despite being picked on because of his disabilities, David continued to go to school and stay strong. His disabilities made school more challenging for him, but he remained determined and worked hard. He took medication to help him focus and found joy in activities like baseball and dancing. While he didn't succeed in sports, he discovered a passion for dancing and even took dancing classes, which brought him happiness and a sense of accomplishment.

After finishing high school, David pursued his interest in videography at the School of Tampa Arts. He loved taking photos and creating videos from them. Unfortunately, a car accident shortly after he got his first car forced him to put college on hold. With the burden of car payments, David decided to work to support himself financially, which eventually led him to meet Yomara, the mother of his child.

While David's life took a difficult turn after becoming a father, He still managed to be there for his daughter he always been there since she was born he was so happy. Took her too her appointments and even stood at home watching her. I know that deep down, he is still that kind-hearted and passionate person who wants to do the right thing. David has always shown strength and perseverance in the face of adversity, and I believe with the right support, he can get back on the right path.

I ask you, Your Honor, to consider David's past and the challenges he has overcome when making your decision. He is not defined by his mistakes but by his resilience and potential to grow from them. I sincerely hope that you can show leniency in his case, as I know David is capable of turning his life around and becoming a positive influence in his daughters life and the community. David also loved helping in the community by volunteering with the back to school with Susan Valdes, he also enjoyed the crossing church and enjoyed the activities there with the youth group.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Vanessa Morales
