Exhibit 2

I am asking to end my supervision and hoping to be considered.

Since this case started back in early 2020, it has been a learning experience for me. I am deeply remorseful for all of my regrettable conduct. However, I think I now learned my lesson well. I needed all of it. It has changed me for good. I have learned that actions and conducts has consequences. Along this process and going forward, I embarked on completely different course in terms of everything compared to what it was before this case. So, I am not the same in any regards anymore.

I was mostly involved with self-improvement activities and book reading during incarceration. After that I reweaved the fabric of my new life and took on a much fulfilling, peaceful journey. I have complied with all orders so far and fulfilled my obligations. I fully intend to be a law abiding, productive, contributing person. I have been volunteering for people in need of basic necessities, actively engaged with community on a daily basis, developed deeper involvement with population in Seattle and surrounding area.

I believe that the time has come to move forward now. It will only help if I can leave this experience behind and move on to the path of self-improvement. I believe in the impermanent nature of everything and we all and everything around us are in a constant state of flux. Change is the only currency. I do not intent to be stuck like a glacier, instead flow like a river in the journey of life. If my supervision is ended now, I would be able to have better life experiences, expedite my healing process, get more involved with productive activities.

Thank you.

With regards,

Eric Shibley
