

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF GEORGIA
ATLANTA DIVISION

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

v.

HARRESCIA HOPKINS

Criminal Action No.

1:22-CR-284-SEG-CMS

Government's Response in Opposition to Defendant's Motion for Sentence Reduction Under 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(2)

The United States of America, by Ryan K. Buchanan, United States Attorney, and Sarah E. Klapman, Assistant United States Attorney for the Northern District of Georgia, files this response in opposition to Defendant Hopkins's Motion for Sentence Reduction (Doc. 47). Because Defendant already received the benefit of Amendment 821 via a variance at sentencing, the motion should be denied.

A. Background

In August 2022, Defendant Hopkins was charged in a two-count indictment with wire fraud, in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 1343, related to a Paycheck Protection Program loan application and a second draw borrower application form that she submitted for the business Hopkins Towing and Storage (Doc. 1). She pleaded guilty to both counts of the indictment (Doc. 19). Her original guidelines were calculated as follows:

Base offense level:	7
Loss (§ 2B1.1(b)(1)(D)):	+6
Acceptance:	-2

Total offense level:	11
Criminal history points:	0
Criminal history category:	I
Custody Guideline Range:	8 to 14 months

See Exhibit 1, chart prepared by United States Probation Office. Defendant was a zero-point offender. The Court considered Amendment 821 and varied under 3553(a) to give Defendant the guidelines benefit at her sentencing. She was sentenced to five months' imprisonment with two years of supervised release to follow (Doc. 35). Defendant now seeks an additional sentence reduction in her pro se motion (Doc. 47).

B. Eligibility

In Part B, Subpart 1 to Amendment 821 to the Sentencing Guidelines, the Sentencing Commission added USSG § 4A1.1(c), providing a 2-offense-level reduction for certain offenders who have zero criminal history points, but only if they qualify by establishing each of ten separate requirements. The new provision states:

§ 4C1.1. Adjustment for Certain Zero-Point Offenders

(a) ADJUSTMENT. — If the defendant meets all of the following criteria:

- (1) the defendant did not receive any criminal history points from Chapter Four, Part A;
- (2) the defendant did not receive an adjustment under §3A1.4 (Terrorism);
- (3) the defendant did not use violence or credible threats of violence in connection with the offense;
- (4) the offense did not result in death or serious bodily injury;
- (5) the instant offense of conviction is not a sex offense;
- (6) the defendant did not personally cause substantial financial hardship;

(7) the defendant did not possess, receive, purchase, transport, transfer, sell, or otherwise dispose of a firearm or other dangerous weapon (or induce another participant to do so) in connection with the offense;
(8) the instant offense of conviction is not covered by §2H1.1 (Offenses Involving Individual Rights);
(9) the defendant did not receive an adjustment under §3A1.1 (Hate Crime Motivation or Vulnerable Victim) or §3A1.5 (Serious Human Rights Offense); and
(10) the defendant did not receive an adjustment under §3B1.1 (Aggravating Role) and was not engaged in a continuing criminal enterprise, as defined in 21 U.S.C. § 848; decrease the offense level determined under Chapters Two and Three by 2 levels.

The Commission later made this change retroactive as of February 1, 2024. See § 1B1.10(e)(2) (Nov. 1, 2023).

Defendant presents the current motion pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(2). That section provides that a court may, in its discretion, reduce the sentence of a defendant whose Sentencing Guidelines range has been lowered by a retroactively applicable Sentencing Guidelines amendment, where the reduction is consistent with the sentencing factors of § 3553(a) and any applicable policy statements:

[I]n the case of a defendant who has been sentenced to a term of imprisonment based on a sentencing range that has subsequently been lowered by the Sentencing Commission pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 994(o), upon motion of the defendant or the Director of the Bureau of Prisons, or on its own motion, the court may reduce the term of imprisonment, after considering the factors set forth in section 3553(a) to the extent that they are applicable, if such a reduction is consistent with applicable policy statements issued by the Sentencing Commission.

In Section 1B1.10 of the Guidelines, the Sentencing Commission has identified the amendments which may be applied retroactively pursuant to this authority, including Part B, Subpart 1 of Amendment 821, and articulated the proper procedure for implementing those amendments. Section 1B1.10(b)(2)(A) provides: “Except as provided in subdivision (B) [related to substantial assistance], the court shall not reduce the defendant’s term of imprisonment under 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(2) and this policy statement to a term that is less than the minimum of the amended guideline range determined under subdivision (1) of this subsection,” that is, the range produced by application of the retroactive guideline amendment.

In Dillon v. United States, 560 U.S. 817 (2010), the Supreme Court addressed the process for application of a retroactive guideline amendment, emphasizing that Section 1B1.10 is binding. The Court declared: “Any reduction must be consistent with applicable policy statements issued by the Sentencing Commission.” Id. at 821. The Court required district courts to follow a two-step approach:

At step one, § 3582(c)(2) requires the court to follow the Commission's instructions in §1B1.10 to determine the prisoner's eligibility for a sentence modification and the extent of the reduction authorized. Specifically, §1B1.10(b)(1) requires the court to begin by "determin[ing] the amended guideline range that would have been applicable to the defendant" had the relevant amendment been in effect at the time of the initial sentencing. "In making such determination, the court shall substitute only the amendments listed in subsection (c) for the corresponding guideline provisions that were applied when the defendant was sentenced and shall leave all other guideline application decisions unaffected." Ibid.

Consistent with the limited nature of § 3582(c)(2) proceedings, §1B1.10(b)(2) also confines the extent of the reduction authorized. Courts generally may "not reduce the defendant's term of imprisonment under 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(2) . . . to a term that is less than the minimum of the amended guideline range" produced by the substitution. §1B1.10(b)(2)(A).

At step two of the inquiry, § 3582(c)(2) instructs a court to consider any applicable § 3553(a) factors and determine whether, in its discretion, the reduction authorized by reference to the policies relevant at step one is warranted in whole or in part under the particular circumstances of the case.

Dillon, 560 U.S. at 827.

In this case, Defendant received the benefit of Amendment 821 via a variance at sentencing. Amendment 821 affects her guidelines as follows:

Base offense level:	7
Loss (§ 2B1.1(b)(1)(D)):	+6
Acceptance:	-2
Zero point reduction:	-2
Total offense level:	9
Criminal history points:	0
Criminal history category:	I

Custody Guideline Range: 4 to 10 months

See Exhibit 1. Defendant's original sentence is within the amended guidelines range, and Amendment 821 was considered by the Court at sentencing. Her motion should be denied.

Respectfully submitted,
