Michael, per our conversation, Blue Flame's answers to all questions. We are ready to go and happy to answer any further questions.

1- Outline what happened with the wire transfer:
We opened a new account, Blue Flame Medical, to handle the larger transactions. This California transaction was bigger than half the bank's assets, bigger, for instance, than our transaction with Maryland, so they were unable to do it. We subsequently moved to Bank of America. The regional manager for BofA said he would be happy to speak with you. We've become such a big part of BofA that we will be on their promotional materials.

2- Potential solutions:
As you know, our supply chain has been working to make sure we have all the products available for all of our clients, especially you. This is a worldwide chain.

We are prepared to process this transaction the same way as before. Alternatively, we can send 10 million masks for delivery, payable as 75% per order and 25% on delivery, for the 100 million masks. So, let's say you get 10 million masks on the 9th; then on the 14th; then on the 20th, etc. You would pay 75% up front for the 9th, 25% upon delivery; and same as it goes. That leaves you with more certainty. Also, and as is in our contract, you have a 48 hour window to look at the product and if it does not meet your standards, you can reject it with money returned.

3-There is no investigation. A return of a sum that large triggers an automatic look but that has come and gone. We are completely 100% honest and as a matter of fact, we work with many law enforcement organizations.
Here are seven police organizations that we are working with right now:
Idaho State Police, Melbourne Airport Police, Melbourne Police, Maryland State Police, Criminal Investigations - state of Iowa, Florida Dept of Law Enforcement.

4- Clients- We have sold millions of masks to, as but one example, the state of Maryland. We are happy to have you speak with the electeds of Maryland or several other of our clients. We have sold PPE kits here in California and we also just began to supply St. John's hospital.

We hope that answers any questions. We were also in the LA Times today. We believe we have the biggest supply chain in the world and we are ready to move forward today. - Matt
