I, Adam Werner, declare and state, under penalty of perjury, that the following is true and correct to the best of my knowledge, information, and belief. If called to testify, I could and would testify competently to the following facts.

I. INTRODUCTION

1. I was asked by The Rosen Law Firm, counsel for the Plaintiffs, to determine whether the common stock of AMC Entertainment Holdings, Inc. ("AMC"), Bed Bath & Beyond Inc. ("BBBY"), BlackBerry Limited ("BB"), Express, Inc. ("EXPR"), GameStop Corp. ("GME"), Koss Corporation ("KOSS"), Tootsie Roll Industries, Inc. ("TR"), and the American Depositary Shares of foreign-issuers Nokia Corporation ("NOK") and trivago N.V. ("TRVG") (collectively the "Affected Companies" or "Affected Stocks") traded in efficient markets prior to the Class Period. To this end, I assess whether the Affected Companies' securities traded in efficient markets during the period from January 28, 2020 through January 27, 2021, inclusive (the "Relevant Period").[1]

2. In addition, I have been asked to opine on whether damages in this matter are subject to a common methodology that can be calculated on a class-wide basis for all Class members in connection with their claims under Sections 9(a)(2) and 10(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (the "Exchange Act") and U.S. Securities & Exchange Commission ("SEC") Rule 10b-5 adopted thereunder.

[1] Due to the short length of the Class Period, and the allegations of market manipulation that occurred during the Class Period, I examined market efficiency for the one-year period prior to the Class Period. I chose to examine a one-year period so that any inferences made on data would be based on an adequately large sample size. I chose to focus this one-year period on the year prior to the Class Period as this is the period that has not yet been affected by the alleged market manipulation.

3. I understand that as an expert witness in this proceeding, my duty in providing my declaration is to the Court and that this duty overrides any obligation to the parties who have engaged me, from whom I have received instructions or compensation. I confirm that I have complied with this duty.

II. PROFESSIONAL BACKGROUND AND EXPERIENCE

4. I am currently a Lecturer in economics at the Orfalea College of Business at California Polytechnic State University San Luis Obispo (Cal Poly) where I have taught managerial economics to graduate students, and international finance, macroeconomics and intermediate microeconomics to undergraduates. I am also an affiliated expert at Crowninshield Financial Research, Inc. ("Crowninshield"). Prior to accepting my lecturer position at Cal Poly and being affiliated with Crowninshield, I spent 16 years working for consulting firms including Cornerstone Research, CRA International, and NERA. I have been retained by both plaintiffs and defendants to consult on matters pertaining to market efficiency, materiality, loss causation and damages, investment banking, financial valuation, security issuance, bankruptcy, and options backdating. My expert opinions have been accepted in Federal, State, and Bankruptcy courts within the United States as well as courts in Australia and Canada. I have lectured frequently to attorneys on the topic of damage estimation and settlements in securities class actions. I have also spoken on the estimation of capital rates in emerging economies at a conference organized by the University of Texas School of Law.

5. I hold a Ph.D. in Finance (1999) from Northwestern University's Kellogg Graduate School of Management. While at Kellogg, I taught M.B.A. classes in corporate finance, and futures and options. I was also awarded a University Scholarship during my time at Kellogg. Prior to graduate school, I served as a Research Assistant at the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland. My full Vitae including prior testimony is attached as Exhibit-1 to this declaration.

6. A list of documents I reviewed in forming my opinion in this matter is set forth in Exhibit-2 to this declaration.

7. Crowninshield is currently being compensated at $750 per hour for my ongoing work on this matter. Additional Crowninshield consultants have assisted me with my work at rates ranging from $250 per hour to $500 per hour. This compensation is not contingent on the outcome of this matter.

III. SUMMARY OF OPINIONS AND FINDINGS

OPINION 1: Seven of the nine Affected Companies traded in an efficient market during the Relevant Period. These seven companies are: AMC, BB, BBBY, EXPR, GME, NOK, and TRVG.

8. My opinions with respect to the seven companies are based on the following observations, analyses, and /findings from the Relevant Period, set forth in detail below:

a. The average weekly trading volume of all seven companies as a percentage of shares outstanding was higher than the 2% required to meet the strong-presumption-of-efficiency benchmark set forth by the court in Cammer v. Bloom;[2]

b. Seven or more securities analysts followed each of the seven companies and there were a multitude of news stories, and press releases published about, and SEC filings published by, each company;

c. All seven companies traded on either the NYSE or the NASDAQ, and each had numerous market makers;

d. Shares of all seven companies were owned by institutional investors;

[2] Cammer v. Bloom, 711 F. Supp. 1264 (D.N.J. 1989).

e. All seven companies were either eligible to file a Form S-3 Registration Statement (a Form F-3 Registration Statement for foreign issuers Nokia and trivago), with the SEC or did file a Form S-3 Registration Statement;

f. Empirical analyses that study the relationship between information flow and security price movements demonstrate that a cause-and-effect relationship existed between news flow and movements in the security price of the seven companies;

g. All seven companies had market capitalizations of at least $100 million;

h. All seven companies had float capitalizations of at least $75 million;

i. A review of data obtained from the Center for Research in Securities Prices ("CRSP") indicated that the bid-ask spreads for six of the seven companies were narrower than market average bid-ask spreads.[3]

OPINION 2: With expert assistance, the finder of fact in this matter will be able to compute damages using a common class-wide methodology that applies to the calculation of damages for each and every Class member.

IV. BACKGROUND

A. About Robinhood Markets, Inc. ("Robinhood")

9. Founded in 2013, Robinhood is a digital trading platform designed to be accessible for any type of customer.[4] Since its founding, Robinhood has marketed itself through its mission statement of "democratizing finance for all."[5] According to the Company, its trading platform allows its customers to "invest commission-free in U.S.-listed stocks and exchange-traded funds ('ETFs'), as well as related options and American Depository Receipts — all from their smartphones."[6] Robinhood's trading platform also allows for transactions in Cryptocurrencies.[7] Robinhood claimed that it aimed to "grow with our customers over time as they build their wealth, and create new and innovative products that are relevant to new and existing customers."[8]

10. Plaintiffs allege that, from January 28, 2021, through and including February 4, 2021 (the "Class Period"), Robinhood manipulated the prices of the Affected Stocks by engaging

B. About the Affected Companies

11. The Affected Companies are all familiar brand names in retail, entertainment, and consumer services, well-known to American consumers.

1. AMC

12. Founded in 1920, AMC Entertainment Holdings owns and operates movie theaters in the U.S. and Europe through its subsidiaries, such as American Multi-Cinema, Inc.[10] AMC's stock price at the close of trading on January 27, 2021, was $19.90 per share. By the close of trading on February 4, 2021, AMC stock had fallen to $7.09 per share, a decline of 64.37% from the close of trading on January 27, 2021.[11]

2. BB

13. BlackBerry Limited was founded in 1984 and offers a range of products and services designed to help customers manage and secure their endpoints, including devices, applications, and data.[12] The company also provides services such as professional services, cybersecurity consulting, and training to help customers implement and optimize their security solutions.[13] At the close of trading on January 27, 2021, the price of BB stock was $25.10 per

V. EFFICIENCY OF THE MARKET FOR AFFECTED COMPANIES' SECURITIES

A. Market Efficiency in Finance Academia and Economic Theory

21. The efficient market hypothesis is the foundation of modern finance theory. In essence, a security trades in an efficient market when all publicly available information is incorporated in the security price and any new information that impacts the economic outlook of the firm gets quickly reflected in its security price. In over 50 years' worth of academic articles, financial economists have used event study analysis to evaluate market efficiency by examining how new information affects securities prices.[30] Event studies are a set of analytical methods used to measure the response of security prices to typical corporate news events such as earnings releases, merger announcements, guidance revisions, etc., after controlling for, among other things, market-wide factors. Campbell et al. [1997] provide a detailed description of the methodology and document its wide use in academic research.[31]

22. Additionally, event studies have been utilized in securities class actions to assess loss causation and damages by analyzing artificial inflation.[32] Gold et al. [2017] write that financial economists generally accept and widely use the methodology in such forensic applications.[33]

23. While financial economists rely on event study analysis as direct evidence demonstrating security price response to new information, they accept other factors as tending to support the existence of an efficient market for a security. For example, financial economists have argued that trading volume is correlated with a market's efficiency such that the higher the trading volume, the more likely it is to be efficient.[34]

24. Financial economists also believe that the number of analysts that follow a company is related to the market efficiency of the company's security. This is based on the theory that:

> [a]nalysts gather and independently generate information about companies and disseminate such information to their clients (e.g., in the form of earnings forecasts and recommendations). Accordingly, it can be expected that the larger the number of analysts following a security, the more efficiently it is traded.[35]

25. Put another way, the more analysts covering a security, the more likely it is that the market for that security will timely incorporate new information in that security's price.

26. Similarly, financial economists have considered the market value of a firm and its relationship with market efficiency.[36] Larger companies tend to attract more analyst and news media coverage and gain the attention of a greater number of investors. All these characteristics, which accompany a large market capitalization, promote, and therefore tend to support, market efficiency.

27. A narrow bid-ask spread[37] of a particular security is also often associated with efficiency. In academia, a security's bid-ask spread is frequently used as a measure of liquidity[38] or cost of trading.[39] All things equal, a narrower bid-ask spread implies that there is a sufficient demand for and supply of an asset—the number of investors willing to buy or sell a security. Thus, the cost of executing a trade is low. A lower cost of trading implies that there are fewer impediments for investors to trade on new information.

B. The Legal Foundation and Application of Market Efficiency

28. In Cammer v. Bloom, 711 F. Supp. 1264 (D.N.J. 1989) ("Cammer"), the seminal decision on demonstrating market efficiency, the court's definition of efficiency was generally consistent with how financial economists and the academic community define efficiency.[40] The Cammer court then related efficiency to the reliance element of securities fraud claims and the applicability of the fraud-on-the-market doctrine, stating: [37] The bid-ask spread is the amount by which the ask price (the lowest price that a seller is willing to accept) for a share of a security exceeds the bid price (the highest price that a buyer is willing to pay).

[38] Liquidity refers to the degree to which investors can buy and sell a security in the market without affecting the price.

[39] See, e.g., Trading & Exchanges: Market Microstructure for Practitioners, by Larry Harris, Oxford University Press, 2003, pp. 420-441.

[40] Cammer, 711 F. Supp. at 1276, n. 17 (quoting Securities Fraud and Commodities Fraud, by Alan Bromberg & Lewis Lowenfels, §8.6 (Aug. 1988)) ("An efficient market is one which rapidly reflects new information in price.")); id. at 1280, n. 25 (quoting "Efficient Capital Markets: A Review of Theory and Empirical Work," by Eugene F. Fama, The Journal of Finance, Vol. 25, No. 2, 1970) ("A market in which prices always 'fully reflect' available information is called 'efficient'").

> [a]s relevant here, courts have permitted a rebuttable presumption of reliance in the case of securities traded in 'efficient markets' (i.e., markets which are so active and followed that material information disclosed by a company is expected to be reflected in the stock price).[41]

29. Just one year earlier, the United States Supreme Court confirmed its understanding of the efficient market theory focusing on the same fundamental characteristic of market efficiency in the context of the availability of the fraud-on-the-market doctrine for establishing the reliance element of a securities fraud claim stating:

> The fraud on the market theory is based on the hypothesis that, in an open and developed securities market, the price of a company's stock is determined by the available material information regarding the company and its business …[42]

30. In advance of laying out a number of criteria that courts should examine in determining market efficiency, the Cammer court credited securities law experts such as Bromberg and Lowenfels. The Cammer court explicitly acknowledged the importance of a listing on a developed exchange and the implications of such a listing for market efficiency:

> We think that, at a minimum, there should be a presumption – probably conditional for class determination – that certain markets are developed and efficient for virtually all the securities traded there: the New York and American Stock Exchanges, the Chicago Board Options Exchange and the NASDAQ National Market System.[43]

[43] Cammer, 711 F. Supp. at 1292.

C. The Cammer Factors and Their Application in This Case

31. The Cammer court applied five factors to determine market efficiency.[44] Widely-accepted academic finance literature provides the economic basis for these factors as indicia of market efficiency. The five factors considered are (i) a security's average weekly trading volume; (ii) analyst coverage; (iii) number of market makers; (iv) eligibility to file an SEC Form S-3; and (v) price reaction to new information.

1. Cammer Factor 1: Average Weekly Trading Volume

32. The first Cammer factor examines whether a security's "average weekly trading volume … [would be] in excess of a certain number of shares."[45] More specifically, the court credited Bromberg who recognized that "turnover measured by average weekly trading of 2% or more of the outstanding shares would justify a strong presumption that the market for the security is an efficient one; 1% would justify a substantial presumption."[46]

33. For the Affected Companies, Table-2 below shows the average weekly trading volume, the average weekly trading volume as a percentage of their stock outstanding, and the Cammer benchmark that was satisfied, if any.

[44] Cammer, 711 F. Supp. at 1286-87.

[45] Cammer, 711 F. Supp. at 1286 ("the reason the existence of an actively traded market, as evidenced by a large weekly volume of stock trades, suggests there is an efficient market is because it implies significant investor interest …. Such interest, in turn, implies a likelihood that many investors are executing trades on the basis of newly available or disseminated corporate information").

[46] Cammer, 711 F. Supp. at 1293.

Table-2: Weekly Trading Volumes During the Relevant Period

Affected Company	Average Weekly Trading Volume (Shares)	Average Weely Trading Volume as a % of Shares Outstanding	Passes 1% Benchmark?	Passes 2% Benchmark?
AMC	115,519,246	112.3%	Yes	Yes
BB	70,040,916	12.5%	Yes	Yes
BBBY	59,306,423	47.3%	Yes	Yes
EXPR	30,622,930	47.3%	Yes	Yes
GME	52,319,732	77.6%	Yes	Yes
KOSS	1,863,512	24.7%	Yes	Yes
NOK	186,003,876	25.2%	Yes	Yes
TR	1,143,380	2.9%	Yes	Yes
TRVG	3,789,684	6.9%	Yes	Yes

Sources: CRSP and SEC filings of Affected Companies.

34. For all Affected Companies, the level of average weekly trading volume exceeds the Cammer benchmark of 2% necessary for a "strong presumption" of market efficiency and exceeds the benchmark of 1% necessary for a "substantial presumption" of market efficiency.[47] Thus, one can make a strong presumption of market efficiency during the Relevant Period for all the Affected Companies based on average trading volume.

2. Cammer Factor 2: Analyst Coverage

35. The Cammer Court found that "it would be persuasive [if] a significant number of securities analysts followed and reported on a company's stock."[48] If investment professionals were closely monitoring a firm's information and subsequently making buy/sell recommendations to their clients based on that information, "the market price of the stock would be bid up or down to reflect the [company's] financial information…as interpreted by the securities analysts."[49] This suggests that the more analysts who followed a security, the greater the likelihood that a security traded in an efficient market. Barber et al. [1994] found that coverage by one or two analysts strengthened the presumption of efficiency for a publicly traded stock.[50]

[47] Volume data obtained from CRSP.

[48] Cammer, 711 F. Supp. at 1286.

36. For all Affected Companies, Table-3 below shows the number of analyst firms that followed each company during the Relevant Period.

37. The various avenues of news media coverage also facilitate the flow of material information to the marketplace, which promotes efficiency. Such avenues of information dissemination include company press releases.[51] For all Affected Companies, Table-4 below shows the number of news articles published for each company during the Relevant Period.

38. For all Affected Companies, except KOSS and TR, the analyst coverage supports a finding of market efficiency. In addition, with the exception of Tootsie Roll and Koss, the dissemination of information about these companies from company press releases and from the news media supports a finding of market efficiency.

3. Cammer Factor 3: Market Makers and Listing on the NYSE or NASDAQ

39. The third factor considered by the Cammer court to indicate market efficiency is that a security had numerous market makers.[52] Specifically, the Cammer court stated, "the existence of market makers and arbitrageurs would ensure completion of the market mechanism; these individuals would react swiftly to company news and reported financial results by buying or selling stock and driving it to a changed price level."[53]

[52] See, e.g., "The Fraud-on-the-Market Theory and The Indicators of Common Stocks' Efficiency," by Brad M. Barber et al., The Journal of Corporation Law, 1994, p. 291.

40. As the name suggests, "market makers" are financial intermediaries who trade in a particular security, standing ready to buy and sell with individual investors, institutions, and other market makers. A large number of market makers implies that many market participants are trading that particular stock, which generally provides a high degree of liquidity and lower transaction costs. For this reason, a large number of market makers for a particular security supports a finding of market efficiency.

41. Market making data from Bloomberg is available on a monthly basis. For all Affected Companies, Table-5 below shows the number market makers that made a market in each Affected Companies' security during the Relevant Period and the exchange each Affected Company traded on.

42. Citing Bromberg and Lowenfels, the Cammer court noted that "[t]en market makers for a security would justify a substantial presumption that the market for the security is an efficient one; five market makers would justify a more modest presumption."[54] All Affected Companies satisfied the Cammer benchmark of at least ten market makers required for a "substantial presumption" of market efficiency. Furthermore, as the Cammer court considered market-making infrastructure as indicative of the efficiency of a security's market, that a stock trades on either the NYSE or NASDAQ further supports a finding of market efficiency because these exchanges are some of the most renowned, most liquid, and most efficient stock trading forums in the world.

[54] Cammer, 711 F. Supp at 1293 (quoting Bromberg & Lowenfels, Securities Fraud and Commodities Fraud §8.6 (1988))

43. The Cammer court explicitly acknowledged the importance of either a NASDAQ or NYSE listing and the implications of such a listing for market efficiency, explaining that market efficiency can reasonably be presumed for securities traded on these markets.

> "We think that, at a minimum, there should be a presumption – probably conditional for class determination – that certain markets are developed and efficient for virtually all the securities traded there: the New York and American Stock Exchanges, the Chicago Board Options Exchange and the NASDAQ National Market System."[55]

44. As shown in Table-5 above, all Affected Companies traded on either the NYSE or NASDAQ exchanges.

45. A related indication of market efficiency is the presence of institutional investors – sophisticated and professional full-time investors – in the market, as economists presume them "to be better informed about the securities they hold and better able to interpret new information than individual investors."[56]

47. All Affected Companies were held by institutional investors during the Relevant Period. That the Affected Companies all possessed numerous market makers, traded on major stock exchanges, and were held by sophisticated professional investors supports a finding these companies traded in an efficient market during the Relevant Period.

4. Cammer Factor 4: SEC Form S-3/F-3 Eligibility

48. The fourth Cammer factor is a firm's ability to file a Form S-3 Registration Statement, or for foreign issuers, a Form F-3 Registration Statement. For a company to be eligible to file a Form S-3, which is simplified compared to a Form S-1 Registration Statement, the SEC requires 12 months of filings and at least $75 million of float. A company with less than $75 million of float and 12 months of filings is eligible to file a Form S-3/F-3 registration so long as the company has "a class of common equity securities listed and registered on a national securities exchange, and the issuers do not sell more than the equivalent of one-third of their public float in primary offerings over any period of 12 calendar months."[57] Despite the fact that the SEC has loosened the $75 million float requirement, courts continue to focus on the $75 million float benchmark when analyzing this Cammer factor.[58]

49. The Cammer court noted that Form S-3 Registration Statement eligibility is indicative of market efficiency because the filing requirement ensured that financial data are available to market participants, and the public float requirement indicated that many market participants would have examined the information.[59]

> Proposed Form S-3 recognizes the applicability of the efficient market theory to the registration statement framework with respect to those registrants which usually provide high quality corporate reports, including Exchange Act reports, and whose corporate information is broadly disseminated, because such companies are widely followed by professional analysts and investors in the market place. Because of the foregoing observations made by the SEC, the existence of Form S-3 status is an important factor weighing in favor of a finding that a market is efficient.[60]
> The 'public float' aspect of the Form S-3 requirements ensures that enough investors have in fact read the previously filed document.[61]
> Again, it is the number of shares traded and value of shares outstanding that involve the facts which imply efficiency.[62]

5. Cammer Factor 5: Price Reaction to New Information

52. The fifth factor cited in Cammer suggests "it would be helpful to . . . [have] empirical facts showing a cause-and-effect relationship between unexpected corporate events or financial releases and an immediate response in the stock price."[63] To demonstrate this cause-and-effect relationship, I conducted collective event study tests investigating whether the market for each of the nine Affected Companies' common stock was efficient. As indicated above, the event study is the preeminent tool for testing market efficiency. Professor Fama states that:

> The cleanest evidence on market-efficiency comes from event studies, especially event studies on daily returns. When an information event can be dated precisely and the event has a large effect on prices, the way one abstracts from expected returns to measure abnormal daily returns is a second-order consideration. As a result, event studies can give a clear picture of the speed of adjustment of prices to information.[64]

53. Since the seminal papers by Ball and Brown [1968] and Fama et al. [1969] first introduced event study analysis to a broader audience of accounting and finance researchers, event studies have "become ubiquitous in capital markets research."[65] Campbell et al. [1997] provide a detailed background and description of how event studies are used in econometric analysis.[66] Gold et al. [2017] write about how the methodology is generally accepted and widely used in forensic applications.[67]

54. In such an application, an event study can measure how much a firm's security price rises or falls in response to new information. An event study first calculates the difference between the actual return on an individual security and the return predicted by the market model. This difference is called an "abnormal return" (or residual return). It measures the impact of new, firm-specific information on a firm's security price. If the abnormal return over an event period is deemed to be statistically significant, it indicates that the security price movement was likely caused by firm-specific information and therefore cannot be attributed to market and/or industry factors, or to random volatility alone. Indeed, a cause-and-effect relationship between information flow and reactions in the security price establishes market efficiency.

55. Not every piece of new information will result in a statistically significant abnormal security return. To the extent that the new information may have been expected, or the valuation impact of the new information is modest, the appropriate abnormal price return should be statistically insignificant. As such, a finding of non-significance does not necessarily establish inefficiency as a modest non-significant security price reaction may be the appropriate and efficient security price reaction to a particular information event.[68] For example, if a company announces earnings that are in-line with analysts' and investors' expectations, even though the announcement contains important information, it may not change the total mix of information sufficiently enough to elicit a statistically significant security price reaction on that date.

a. Regression Parameters and Methodology

(1) Market Model

56. A market model is used to determine how much of a company's security return on each event was driven by company-specific information as opposed to market and peer group factors. The market model involves running a regression to determine how the Affected Companies' stock prices typically behaved in relation to the overall stock market and industry-specific factors during the Relevant Period. The regression model is then used to determine how much of each event day's observed security price return can be explained by the market and industry-specific factors (the "expected return" or "explained return"). That is, a market model measures the expected return of the company's security over an event period after controlling for the overall market and industry-specific factors.

57. Next, the abnormal return (or residual return) is computed by subtracting the expected return from the observed security price return. The abnormal return is the return of the company's security after controlling for market effect and industry-specific factors.

58. For each of the Affected Companies, I ran a regression modeling the return of the Affected Companies' common stock prices as a function of 1) a constant term, 2) the returns of the overall stock market, and 3) an industry index return. The regression model is formulaically expressed as follows:

$$Rs_t = \alpha + \beta_1 Rm_t + \beta_2 Ri_t + \epsilon_t$$

Where:

Rs_t= the return of the stock;

Rm_t= the return of the market index;

Ri_t= the daily return of the industry index.

59. The regression model produces a "constant" term ("α") also referred to as an "intercept" term, and one or more slope coefficient, or "beta" ("β"). The betas quantify the sensitivity of a security's return to the return on the market index ("β_1") and industry index ("β_2"). A security with a market index beta of 1.0 is expected to increase (decrease) by one percent for each one percent increase (decrease) in the market index. Similarly, a security with a market beta of 2.0 is expected to increase (decrease) by two percent for each one percent increase (decrease) in the market index.

60. To control for movements in the overall stock market for all Affected Companies, I used the CRSP NYSE/AMEX/NASDAQ/ARCA Market Index ("Market Index"), which is a generally accepted measure of the performance of the overall stock market. The Market Index incorporates payment of dividends by the constituent companies. Appendix-A shows the peer group I selected for each Affected Company for use as an industry index, as well as the methodology I applied to determine that selection.

61. Exhibit-3a to 3i presents the stock prices, trading volumes, and stock price returns for all Affected Companies during the Relevant Period. Exhibit-4 presents the Market Index return for the Relevant Period. Exhibit-5 presents the appropriate Industry Index return for all Affected Companies during the Relevant Period.[69]

62. Prior to running a regression, one must decide on an estimation period over which to measure the relationship between the security at issue and the corresponding market and industry indices. In each instance, I ran the regression over the Relevant Period. In event study

[69] In my regression analysis, I use log returns $R_1 = \ln (P_1/P_0)$ rather than normal returns $R_1 = ((P_1-P_0)/P_0)$ where P_1 = ending stock price and P_0 = beginning stock price, as security returns are considered to be log normally distributed.

analysis, the choice of using the period preceding the event window, here the year prior to Robinhood's challenged actions, as the regression estimation period is a widely used and generally accepted methodology.[70]

63. For each Affected Company, I also used dummy variables in the regression model to control for the potentially abnormal returns on each Affected Company's earnings announcement dates and on January 27, 2021. Using dummy variables to control for potentially atypical observations in the regression estimation period so that the model parameters can better reflect typical stock price dynamics, is a widely used and generally accepted methodology.[71]

64. The results of the regressions for the Affected Companies are summarized in Exhibits-6a to 6i.

(2) t*-Test

65. For each day during the Relevant Period and for each Affected Company, I conducted a statistical test called a t-test to determine whether an Affected Companies' abnormal return was statistically significant. If the absolute value of the "t-statistic," which is equal to the abnormal return on an event date divided by the standard deviation of all abnormal returns in the regression estimation, is greater than the critical t-statistic value of ±1.96, then the security price return is deemed statistically significant. That is, there is less than a 5% chance that the abnormal return was caused by random volatility alone, which is generally accepted to be so unlikely that the random volatility explanation can be rejected. If a date's abnormal return is deemed to be statistically significant, one can conclude that the security price return was caused by company-specific information, rather than random volatility.

66. Exhibit-7a to Exhibit-7i presents the daily event study results for all Affected Companies.

b. Cause-and-Effect Analysis: High Information Flow versus Low Information Flow Days

67. While Cammer does not provide specific tests, indicia, or factors on which the court relied in determining the existence of a cause-and-effect relationship for a security and its incorporation of information, economists perform various tests, utilizing statistical methodologies, that can provide probative quantitative evidence concerning the existence of a cause-and-effect relationship consistent with an efficient market. In order to test this proposition, one must first examine whether or not a stock's price reacts differently on days in which new information is revealed ("news days") versus all other days ("non-news days"). A key component of such a test is defining what is news.

68. In performing a news vs. no-news test, it is important to use an objective filter to identify "news days" in order to remove any potential subjective biases that may impact the results of the test. To remain as objective as reasonably possible, I broadly defined "news days" as any day with news releases about a subject company that can be identified through the news aggregating database, Factiva. Such a broad definition of news is highly objective but produces many "news days" as a result, due to the frequent news coverage of the Affected Companies by news media sources. In order to isolate a test sample of news days that would be more likely than not to contain valuation-relevant information, I focused on the frequency of news releases on each day during the Relevant Period for each Affected Company. The idea that the frequency of news releases on a particular topic is an indicator of its import has been established in content analysis studies, for example:

> "The frequency with which a symbol, idea, reference or topic occurs in a stream of messages is taken to indicate the importance, of attention to, or emphasis on that symbol, idea, reference, or topic in the messages."[72]

69. Given that a higher number of news releases is linked to a higher likelihood of trading and market activity, in an efficient market, one would expect days with a higher number of news releases to be more likely to exhibit atypical security price movements.

70. To identify days with the highest number of news releases, or "high information flow days", I began with the news articles published during the Relevant Period for each Affected Company that I obtained from Factiva. I then determined the effective trading date that each article was published, a process that utilizes the article publishing dates provided by Factiva for each news article.[73] For each Affected Company, to identify my high information flow and low information flow test groups, I separated the Relevant Period days based on the number of news articles published each day. I established a rank for each day in the Relevant Period according to the number of news articles published each day from the largest number of news articles to the smallest number of news articles. The top 10% of days with the most news articles published were placed in the high information flow group. The remaining 90% of days were placed in the low information flow group. There are 253 days in the Relevant Period. Thus, the 25 days with the largest number of new articles published fall within the top 10% and are considered high information flow days. The remaining 228 days are low information flow days. Table-8 below shows the number of high information flow days and lesser information flow days that were identified for each Affected Company

71. In instances where more than one day has an equal number of news days that are ranked as having the 25th largest number of news articles, I placed all such days with the same number of news articles into the high information flow sample. Table 8 below shows that six of the nine Affected Companies have more than one day ranking as the 25th largest news day and so have more than 25 days in the high information flow group.

72. See Appendix-B for additional details of the methodology I applied to identify high information flow and low information flow days.

73. After the high information flow and lesser information flow dates have been identified, statistical analysis is used to compare the stock price reactions on high information flow days to the stock price reactions on low information flow days. As explained by Ferrillo, Dunbar and Tabak in their article published in 2004 in the St. John's Law Review, if the proportion of significant price movements on news days is statistically significantly different than on non-news days, "then the evidence would show that, on average, the stock price reacts to news announcements."[74]

74. The use of tests comparing security price reaction on news dates to non or lesser-news dates for assessing market efficiency is supported and explained by a group of eight testifying finance experts who wrote an Amici Curiae brief in Halliburton II:

> Another way to perform an event study is to divide the days of the class period ex ante into expected news days and non-news days before examining price movements, and then compare the stock's price movements in the two categories to see if there is a statistically significant difference in price movement between the two categories. If the study finds a difference in price movement between the two sample sets (e.g., earnings-release dates versus non-earnings-release dates), that is statistical evidence that the market incorporates new public information into the price of the stock.[75]

75. I employed a Fisher's exact test to compare the frequency of statistically significant stock price reactions on high information flow days as compared to lesser information flow days. The Fisher's exact test is a commonly used and widely accepted statistical tool for testing for a difference in the frequency of statistically significant observations between two samples.[76] If the frequency of statistically significant security price reactions on high information flow days is statistically significantly greater than the frequency of statistically significant price reactions on lesser information flow days for an Affected Company, one can conclude for that company that its stock price reacted to information during the Relevant Period. Such a result would demonstrate a cause-and-effect relationship between news and reactions in the price of an Affected Company's stock, thereby demonstrating market efficiency.

76. Similar tests are commonly employed by both plaintiff and defense experts in securities litigation to test for a cause-and-effect relationship.[77] Such statistical analysis has also been accepted by courts when assessing market efficiency:[78]

> [C]ourts have ... endorsed the comparison test that [Plaintiffs' expert] used. See, e.g., In re Alstom SA Sec. Litig., 253 F.R.D. 266, 280 (S.D.N.Y. 2008). is significantly more likely to change on News Days than on Non-News Days, that suggests a causal relationship between material news and the stock price.[79]

77. Importantly, as I noted above, not all high information flow dates are expected to cause a statistically significant stock price reaction. This is reasonable as high information flow days were selected using a broad (but objective) criteria.

c. Cause-and-Effect Analysis: Results and Findings

78. For eight of the nine Affected Companies there was clear evidence of a cause-and-effect relationship between news and reactions in the Companies' stock prices. Specifically, the Fisher's Exact Test found that for AMC, BB, BBBY, EXPR, GME, KOSS, NOK, and TRVG there was a statistically significant difference between high information flow days and low information flow days during the Relevant Period. Table-9 below summarizes the test parameters and results. Fisher's Exact Test p-values that are less than 5% are statistically significant at the 95% confidence level. The eight companies all had p-values of less than 1%, i.e. greater than a 99% confidence level), and all but one had confidence levels greater than 99.5%.

79. The results of these statistical tests support the conclusion that the stock prices for eight of the nine Affected Companies reacted to information during the Relevant Period.

D. The Unger/Krogman Factors Considered

80. In addition to evaluating market efficiency using the Cammer factors, I also analyzed three factors considered by the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in Unger v. Amedisys, 401 F.3d 316 (5th Cir. 2005), and the district court in Krogman v. Sterritt, 202 F.R.D. 467 (N.D. Tex. 2001) as indicative of market efficiency.

1. Market Capitalization

81. Economists have often considered the market value of a firm when attempting to determine market efficiency. Larger capitalization companies tend to attract more analyst and news media coverage and gain the attention of greater numbers of investors, including very large institutional investors, factors themselves indicative of market efficiency.

82. The court in Krogman held that "[m]arket capitalization, calculated as the number of shares multiplied by the prevailing share price, may be an indicator of market efficiency because there is a greater incentive for stock purchasers to invest in more highly capitalized corporations."[80] In addition, some investors such as pension funds are often restricted to owning securities whose market capitalization is sufficiently high.

83. For all Affected Companies, Table-10 below presents the average market capitalizations, and the respective percentile ranks versus the market capitalizations of all publicly traded companies during the Relevant Period.

Table-10: Market Capitalization During the Relevant Period

Affected Company	Average Market Capitalization	Percentile vs. All Other U.S. Stocks' Market Capitalizations
AMC	$287,290,903	47%
BB	$3,053,056,842	81%
BBBY	$1,678,528,197	73%
EXPR	$108,203,106	30%
GME	$723,057,391	62%
KOSS	$15,464,461	8%
NOK	$2,929,185,878	80%
TR	$1,297,426,817	70%
TRVG	$100,496,164	29%

Sources: CRSP and SEC filings of Affected Companies.

84. Excluding KOSS, the Affected Companies' market capitalizations ranged from sizable to large. Consistent with the Unger/Krogman opinions, these companies' market capitalizations throughout the Relevant Period are further evidence of market efficiency.

[80] Krogman, 202 F.R.D. 467 at 478.

2. Float

85. Float excludes shares held by insiders and affiliated corporate entities. For all Affected Companies, Table-11 below presents the average float and the respective percentile rank versus the market capitalizations of all publicly traded companies during the Relevant Period.[81]

Table-11: Float Capitalization During the Relevant Period

Affected Company	Average Float Capitalization	Percentile vs. All Other U.S. Stocks' Market Capitalizations	Above $75 Million?
AMC	$281,713,622	46%	Yes
BB	$3,012,253,936	80%	Yes
BBBY	$1,657,707,529	73%	Yes
EXPR	$106,350,091	30%	Yes
GME	$714,876,656	62%	Yes
KOSS	$3,513,589	2%	No
NOK	$2,927,413,519	80%	Yes
TR	$535,775,739	57%	Yes
TRVG	$92,411,914	28%	Yes

Sources: CRSP and SEC filings of Affected Companies.

86. Excluding KOSS, the magnitude of these companies' floats are indicative of the efficiency of the market for their stock during the Relevant Period.

3. Bid-Ask Spread

87. A narrow bid-ask spread for a particular security is also often associated with efficiency because it implies that there is a large number of investors willing to buy or sell a security, thus the cost of executing a trade is lower, all else being equal.

[81] As float capitalization is always lower than market capitalization, comparing the Affected Companies' float capitalization to the market capitalization of all other publicly traded companies is conservative.

88. I obtained the daily closing bid and ask quotes for all Affected Companies stock during the Relevant Period from CRSP. I measured the percentage bid-ask spread as the difference between the bid and ask quotes, divided by the average of the bid and ask quotes.[82]

89. For all Affected Companies, Table-12 below shows the average bid-ask spread during the Relevant Period in dollar and percentage terms. Table-12 also presents the average month-end bid-ask spread over the course of the Relevant Period for all stocks in the CRSP database.[83]

Table-12: Bid-Ask Spreads During the Relevant Period

Affected Company	Average Bid-Ask Spread (%)	Average Bid-Ask Spread ($)	Narrower Than Market?
AMC	0.26%	$0.01	Yes
BB	0.20%	$0.01	Yes
BBBY	0.10%	$0.01	Yes
EXPR	0.52%	$0.01	Yes
GME	0.18%	$0.01	Yes
KOSS	3.40%	$0.15	No
NOK	0.26%	$0.01	Yes
TR	0.05%	$0.02	Yes
TRVG	1.08%	$0.02	No
All CRSP Stocks	0.62%	$0.20

Source: CRSP.

90. With the exceptions of KOSS and TRVG, the average bid-ask spread of the Affected Companies was narrower than the average level among all other CRSP stocks. For these seven Companies, the bid-ask spread measure favors a finding of market efficiency.

VI. COMMON DAMAGE METHODOLOGY

91. Plaintiffs' counsel has asked me to opine on whether per share damages could be measured for each Class member under Sections 9(a)(2) and 10(b) of the Exchange Act using a common methodology for all Class members.[84]

A. Sections 9(a)(2) and 10(b) Damages Methodology

92. Economic analysis can be used to estimate the relationship between Robinhood's alleged manipulation of the Affected Companies' share prices and the subsequent decline in those shares' prices. The methodologies a financial economist can employ to calculate individual and class-wide damages stemming from stock price manipulation will accommodate alternative potential determinations of liability.

93. I have been informed by counsel for Plaintiffs that under Sections 9(a)(2) and 10(b) of the Exchange Act, in a case where class members are defrauded sellers, the measure of damages "is the difference between the fair value of all that the [] seller received and the fair value of what he would have received had there been no fraudulent conduct, … ."[85]

94. Class-wide damages in response to Robinhood's manipulation of the Affected Companies' shares prices ultimately established by the Plaintiffs can be calculated in a straightforward manner common to all Class members.

[84]It should be noted that I have not conducted a loss causation analysis at this time and reserve the right to address such issues at the appropriate stage of the litigation. The loss causation analysis that will be necessary to calculate actual damages in the current case requires the full development of the record.

[85] Affiliated Ute Citizens of Utah v. United States, 406 U.S. 128, 155, 92 S. Ct. 1456, 1473, 31 L. Ed. 2d 741 (1972).

95. For example, damages for a defrauded seller can be measured as the difference between the market value of the Affected Companies' shares' prices at close of trading on January 27, 2021 (before Robinhood first implemented various alleged restrictions), and the prices at which Class Members sold their shares during the Class Period, reduced by non-Robinhood related price deflation. The method is summarized below.

96. First, analytic tools would be used to establish that Robinhood's alleged market manipulation caused the price of the Affected Companies' shares to fall and remain deflated during the Class Period. Assuming a verdict for the Plaintiffs on the allegations of market manipulation, damages under Sections 9(a)(2) and 10(b) for each security can thus be measured as follows:

a. An empirical model will be developed that apportions the responsibility for the deflation in the Affected Companies' shares by taking into account a variety of factors, that may include the timing, duration, and nature of the various trading restrictions imposed during the Class Period by Robinhood and others, relevant news entering the market, trading volume of Robinhood's customers in the Affected Companies' securities, share price movements in response to imposition and lifting of various restrictions, and other factors not related to the restrictions.

b. Once the above-described loss causation analyses have disaggregated all of the Affected Companies' share price declines resulting from any factors unrelated to Robinhood's alleged manipulative conduct, one is able to determine the portion of the difference between the shares' market prices at close of trading on January 27, 2021, and investors' sale prices during the Class Period that is attributable to Robinhood's allegedly fraudulent conduct.

c. The PSLRA 90-day look-back provision applied in artificial inflation cases based upon misrepresentations and omissions does not appear to apply to potentially cap damages on market manipulation claims such as here based on the text of the statute:

> (1) In general; Except as provided in paragraph (2), in any private action arising under this chapter in which the plaintiff seeks to establish damages by reference to the market price of a security, the award of damages to the plaintiff shall not exceed the difference between the purchase or sale price paid or received, as appropriate, by the plaintiff for the subject security and the mean trading price of that security during the 90-day period beginning on the date on which the information correcting the misstatement or omission that is the basis for the action is disseminated to the market.[86]

97. Because the Plaintiffs' market manipulation claims do not allege the correction of a misstatement or omission, but rather Robinhood's eventual lifting of its trading restrictions in the Affected Companies' shares, the 90-day lookback provision by its terms does not appear to apply. Nonetheless, if the Court were to determine the 90-day look-back provision applies, it is a relatively straight-forward and simple calculation once it is determined when the period commences for each security. The calculation of each Class member's damages would be a mechanical arithmetical exercise, conducted the same way for all Class members, applying the results of the Class-wide analyses described above to each Class member's trading data.

98. Consequently, each Class member's per security damages under Sections 9(a)(2) and 10(b) can be computed in the same way, common to all Class members, using readily available pricing information, in accordance with widely-used and generally-accepted methodologies.

[86] 15 U.S.C.A. § 78u-4 (West) (emphasis added).

99. I have not been asked to evaluate loss causation or to calculate damages for any of the claims alleged on behalf of the Class, and such calculations will depend, in part, on the completion of discovery. However, the methodology described above is generally accepted and widely used for calculating damages under the Exchange Act consistently on a class-wide basis in securities class actions. To the extent that there are specific issues complicating the quantification of artificial deflation and damages, such as potential confounding information, these issues relate to the merits of the damages model – not whether damages can be calculated on a class-wide basis pursuant to a common methodology for the Class.

VII. CONCLUSION

100. Based on my analyses explained in detail above, I conclude that seven of the nine Affected Companies' shares, specifically AMC Entertainment Holdings, Inc., Bed Bath & Beyond Inc., BlackBerry Ltd., Express Inc., GameStop Corp., Nokia Corp., and trivago N.V. traded in efficient markets with regard to publicly disclosed information for the one-year period prior to the Class Period.

101. I also conclude that with expert assistance, the finder of fact in this matter will be able to compute damages using a common class-wide methodology that applies to the calculation of damages for each and every Class member.

VIII. APPENDIX-A

102. To control for industry-related factors for each Affected Company, I examined their respective Form 10-Ks and Annual Reports filed during the Relevant Period in order to identify the index each Affected Company compared its stock price performance to. For six of the nine Affected Companies, I was able to identify a suitable Industry Index though this methodology. Table-13 below presents the results of this process:

Table-13: Industry Index Selection Based on SEC Filings

Affected Company	Appropriate Industry Index	Source
AMC	"A self-determined peer group consisting of Cinemark Holdings, Inc. (CNK) and IMAX Corporation (IMAX)"	Form 10-K, filed February 28, 2020, p. 30.
BBBY	S&P Specialty Retail Index	Form 10-K, filed April 29, 2020, p. 17.
BB	S&P 500 Information Technology index	Form 10-K, filed February 29, 2020, p. 25.
EXPR	Dow Jones U.S. Apparel Retailers Index	Form 10-K, filed March 17, 2020, p. 22.
GME	Dow Jones Specialty Retailers Index	Form 10-K, filed March 27, 2020, p. 14.
TR	Dow Jones US Food Producers Index	Form 10-K, filed February 28, 2020, p. 11.

103. For the remaining three Affected Companies, NOK, KOSS, and TRVG, I was not able to identify a comparable industry index within each companies' 10-K and Annual Report filings during the Relevant Period. I instead relied on the Global Industry Classification Standard ("GICS") identifier for each of the three companies to identify an appropriate industry index. I first obtained the GICS identifier for NOK, KOSS, and TRVG from Bloomberg. Because GICS identifiers denote the industry sector that the associated company belongs to, I was able to determine the appropriate comparison industry for NOK, KOSS, and TRVG. Subsequently, I identified an S&P index that reflects the appropriate comparison industry for each of the three companies, respectively.[87] The results of this process are summarized in Table-14 below:

[87] The GICS Identifier is composed of up to eight numerical digits, with every two digits representing a different level of sector classification. The first two digits denote a company's "sector", the next two digits denote a company's "industry group", the fifth and sixth digits denotes a company's "industry", and the final two digits denote a company's "sub-industry." For the

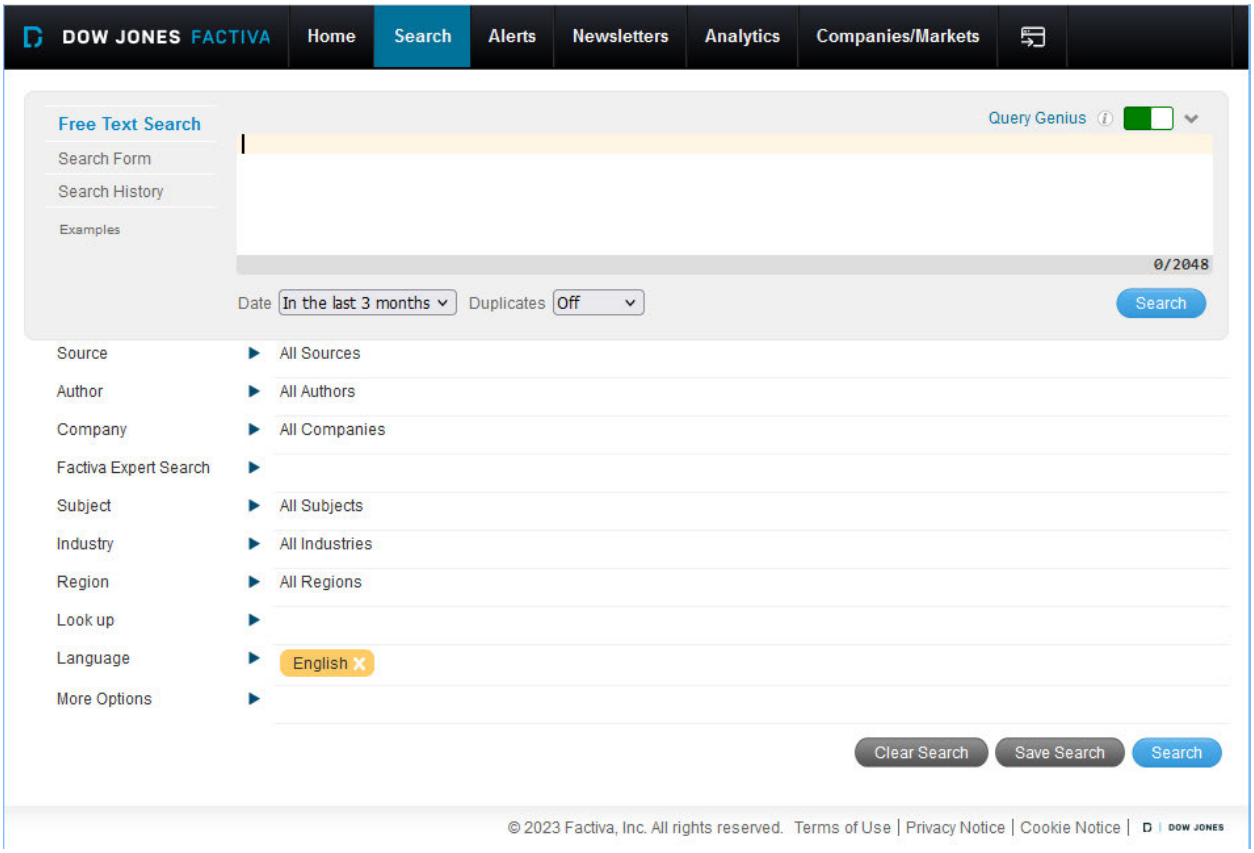

Table-14: Industry Index Selection Based on GICS

Affected Company	GICS Identifer	Industry Classification	Chosen Industry Index
NOK	452010	Communications Equipment	S&P 500 Communications Equipment Industry Index
KOSS	252010	Household Durables	S&P 500 Household Durables Industry Index
TRVG	502030	Interactive Media & Services	S&P 500 Interactive Media & Services Industry Index

purposes of my analyses, I selected NOK, KOSS, and TRVG's peer index based on each company's "industry" classification.

IX. APPENDIX-B

104. To determine the samples of high information flow days and low information flow days for purposes of the collective tests I performed, I began by searching for all news articles published about each of the nine Affected Companies through the news aggregator Factiva. Factiva provides a search tool to identify specified news articles published about most U.S. traded companies during a specified period. By default, this search function is displayed as follows:

105. As shown above, there are twelve modifiable options for how to parameterize the Factiva search, "date range", "duplicates", "source", "author", "company", "Factiva expert search", "subject", "industry", "region", "look-up language", "more options", and a "Free Text Search" that allows for searching specific words or phrases. For purposes of the collective tests I performed, I modified three out of the eleven options, these were: "date range", "duplicates", and

"company". Because the design of my collective tests required an objective sample of days on which news articles were published, I left all other fields in the search parameters as they appear by default.

106. For the three search parameters I modified:

a. "date range" was set to the Relevant Period.

b. "duplicates" was set to "identical", which removes identical news articles from appearing in the search.

c. "company" was set to each of the nine Affected Companies.

107. Using these modified search parameters, I identified all news articles published about the Affected Companies during the Relevant Period. The total number of news articles I identified for each Affected Company using this process is shown in Table-15 below:

Table-15: Unique News Articles Published During the Relevant Period

Affected Company	No. of News Articles
AMC	2,081
BB	999
BBBY	2,210
EXPR	332
GME	1,380
KOSS	112
NOK	6,955
TR	35

Source: Factiva.

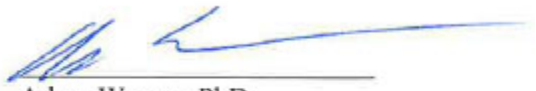

108. For each article, Factiva provides the date that the article was published and its headline. Using the publication date, I counted the number of unique news articles published on every day of the Relevant Period for each of the Affected Companies.

109. Exhibit-8 presents the number of unique news articles I counted for each day of the Relevant Period across the nine Affected Companies.

X. LIMITING FACTORS AND OTHER ASSUMPTIONS

110. My analyses and opinions are based on the information available as of the date of this declaration. Should any additional data or information become available subsequent to the submission of this declaration, I reserve the right to supplement or amend this declaration based on this new information.
