I. INTRODUCTION

Pursuant to Rules 59(e) and 60(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Civil Local Rule 7.1(i), and the Court’s August 1, 2023 Order Granting Leave to File Motion for Reconsideration (Dkt. 148), Plaintiffs respectfully submit this motion for reconsideration of the Court’s dismissal of Plaintiffs’ Unfair Competition Law (“UCL”) claim, with prejudice, on the ground that Plaintiffs had failed to “allege inadequate legal remedies.” Dkt. 126 (“MTD Order”) at 31–33.

As stated in Plaintiffs’ application for leave to file this motion (Dkt. 141 at 1) and in the Court’s subsequent order (Dkt. 148 at 2), Plaintiffs submit that the Court committed four clear errors of law in dismissing Plaintiffs’ UCL claim with prejudice: (1) overlooking that Plaintiffs’ UCL claim sought prospective injunctive relief based on future irreparable harms, for which no legal remedies exist, see Dkt. 72 (“MCC”) ¶¶5, 9–33, 111–13, 285, 584; (2) overlooking that Plaintiffs’ UCL claim alleged that the Bank’s challenged practices, even if not “unlawful,” are independently actionable under the UCL as “unfair” practices, for which no legal remedies are available; (3) dismissing the UCL claim without leave to amend even though, if amendment were permitted, Plaintiffs could allege inadequate legal remedies; and (4) dismissing the UCL claim with prejudice to Plaintiffs’ ability to re-file that claim in state court, which is contrary to Ninth Circuit precedent governing dismissals for lack of equitable jurisdiction.

II. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In May 2021, the plaintiffs in member case Yick v. Bank of Am., N.A., No. 21-cv-01092-VC (N.D. Cal.), obtained a preliminary injunction and provisional class certification based on having established a “strong likelihood of success” on their Electronic Fund Transfers Act (“EFTA”), breach-of-contract, and UCL claims. 539 F.Supp.3d 1023, 1025 (N.D. Cal. 2021). On June 2, 2021, the Yick court entered the Preliminary Injunction. Yick, Dkt. 103; MCC ¶¶109–10 & Exs. A–B. Two days later this MDL was created. Dkt. 1.

1 Plaintiffs filed their Master Consolidated Complaint (“MCC”) (Dkt. 72) in this 2 MDL in August 2021. That complaint included a UCL claim alleging that the Bank’s
3 challenged practices were both “unlawful” and “unfair.” Plaintiffs’ requested 4 remedies for those UCL violations were restitution and prospective injunctive relief, 5 including “an order making the existing Preliminary Injunction permanent.” MCC 6 ¶¶575–84 & Prayer. Although the MCC did not contain a boilerplate allegation that 7 legal remedies are inadequate, it expressly alleged, and set forth detailed allegations 8 showing, that the Bank’s UCL violations had caused and were continuing to cause 9 Plaintiffs to suffer “irreparable harm” (MCC ¶¶5, 285) and “irreparable injury” (MCC 10 ¶¶9–33).¹

11 In October 2021, the Bank moved to dismiss the UCL claim for lack of 12 equitable jurisdiction, arguing that Plaintiffs’ request for damages in connection with 13 their other claims for relief provided them “an adequate remedy at law” with respect 14 to their UCL claim. Dkt. 84-1 at 32:5. Plaintiffs opposed, including on the ground that 15 their UCL claim sought prospective injunctive relief to “prevent future harm” from 16 the Bank’s “continued implementation of its challenged business practices.” Dkt. 90 at 17 43:13–18 (citing, as an example, MCC ¶111). Plaintiffs also requested leave to amend 18 their UCL claim if the Bank’s motion were granted. Id. at 14:3–4, 50:12–15. The 19

20 ¹ See also MCC ¶51 (alleging the Bank “continues” to freeze and block EDD debit 21 card accounts); MCC ¶56 (alleging the Bank’s “ongoing failure to secure Plaintiffs’ 22 and Class Members’ Cardholder Information ... continues to violate” the CCPA and 23 other laws); MCC ¶107 (alleging the Bank “continues to block the Accounts of 24 legitimate Cardholders based solely on the results of the Bank’s Claim Fraud Filter, 25 without any reasonable investigation”); MCC ¶111–12 (similar); MCC ¶542 (alleging 26 the “volume of calls from EDD Debit Cardholders to the Bank’s customer service to 27 report unauthorized transactions ... continues to be, so great, and the Bank’s customer 28 service department is so understaffed, that the Bank routinely causes EDD Debit Cardholders to wait on hold for multiple hours”); MCC ¶584 (seeking injunctive relief “prohibiting the Bank from continuing its unfair and unlawful business practices,” and “requiring the Bank to take reasonable measures to prevent future unauthorized use of EDD Debit Cards and Accounts”).

1 Bank's reply brief did not respond to Plaintiffs' argument that a damages remedy 2 could not prevent future harm. See Dkt. 92 at 19:27–20:23.

3 In May 2023, the Court granted in part and denied in part the Bank's motion to 4 dismiss the MCC and granted Plaintiffs leave to amend certain dismissed claims. See
5 MTD Order (Dkt. 126). With respect to the UCL claim, the Court ruled that the MCC
6 "fails to state a UCL claim" under Sonner v. Premier Nutrition Corp., 971 F.3d 834, 7 844 (9th Cir. 2020), because it "doesn't allege inadequate legal remedies." Id. at 33:8, 8 33:11–13. The Court then dismissed the UCL claim in its entirety "with prejudice," 9 id. at 33:14–15, 75:3–4, without stating why the Court denied leave to amend or why 10 the dismissal was with prejudice.

11 In June 2023, Plaintiffs filed their now-operative First Amended Master 12 Consolidated Complaint ("FAMCC") (Dkt. 136). The FAMCC includes an express 13 allegation, incorporated by reference into Plaintiffs' UCL claim, that Plaintiffs' "legal 14 remedies are inadequate to prevent future harm from the Bank's unlawful and unfair
15 conduct that is the subject of this Complaint, and that is or would be ongoing but for 16 the preliminary injunction the consolidated Yick plaintiffs obtained in June 2021."
17 FAMCC ¶¶285, 575. The FAMCC's UCL claim also notes that the Court had 18 "dismissed this claim with prejudice for failure to allege inadequate legal remedies" 19 and that "Plaintiffs intend to seek leave to file a motion to reconsider that ruling."
20 FAMCC ¶¶575–84 & n.34.

21 Shortly after the Court ruled on the Bank's Motion to Dismiss, Plaintiffs timely 22 filed an ex parte application for leave to file a motion for reconsideration regarding 23 the Court's dismissal of the UCL claim. Dkt. 136. The Court granted that application 24 (Dkt. 148), and this motion now follows.

25 III. LEGAL STANDARD

26 Reconsideration is appropriate if "the district court ... committed clear error or 27 the initial decision was manifestly unjust." Dixon v. Robinson, No. 07-cv-00553-LAB, 28 2007 WL 2700732, at *1 (S.D. Cal. Sept. 12, 2007) (quoting Sch. Dist. No. 1J v.

1 ACandS, Inc., 5 F.3d 1255, 1263 (9th Cir. 1993)); see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e), 2 60(b)(6); S.D. Cal. Civ. L.R. 7.1(i); Hon. Larry A. Burns’ Standing Order in Civil Cases 3 §3(e)(3).

4 IV. ARGUMENT

5 A. Damages for past violations is not an adequate remedy to prevent 6 future harm.

7 “[U]nder Sonner, a plaintiff must plead inadequate legal remedies in the 8 operative pleading to allege claims for equitable relief.” Brand v. KSF Acquisition
9 Corp., No. 22-cv-00392-LAB, 2023 WL 3225409, at *4 (S.D. Cal. Mar. 17, 2023)
10 (quoting Rivera v. Jeld-Wen, Inc., No. 21-cv-01816-AJB, 2022 WL 3702934, at *12 11 (S.D. Cal. Feb. 4, 2022)). A complaint satisfies this requirement when its allegations 12 “demonstrate the inadequacy of a legal remedy.” MTD Order at 33:6–8 (quoting 13 Sharma v. Volkswagen AG, 524 F.Supp.3d 891, 907 (N.D. Cal. 2021)). What matters 14 is not whether plaintiffs include a boilerplate allegation of inadequate legal remedies, 15 but whether they “allege facts suggesting that damages are insufficient.” Antonyan v.
16 Ford Motor Co., No. 21-cv-00945-DMG, 2022 WL 1299964, at *6 (C.D. Cal. Mar.
17 30, 2022); accord McNamara v. Wells Fargo & Co., No. 21-cv-1245-LAB, Dkt. 20 at 18 17–18 (S.D. Cal. Mar. 30, 2022) (dismissing without prejudice UCL claim seeking 19 restitution where plaintiff “doesn’t allege any facts suggesting that legal remedies are 20 insufficient,” and “doesn’t seek injunctive relief that might suggest the insufficiency 21 of legal remedies”). When prospective injunctive relief is sought, the general rule is 22 that “legal damages are typically inadequate to remedy the future harms from ongoing 23 violations.” Kryzhanovskiy v. Amazon.com Servs., Inc., No. 21-cv-01292-DAD, 2022 24 WL 2345677, at *4 (E.D. Cal. June 29, 2022).

25 Although the MCC did not contain a boilerplate allegation that legal remedies 26 were “inadequate,” it fully satisfied Sonner by repeatedly alleging that Plaintiffs were 27 continuing to suffer “irreparable harm” (MCC ¶¶5, 285) and “irreparable injury” 28 (MCC ¶¶9–33). “Irreparable injury” is “[a]n injury that cannot be adequately measured 1 or compensated by money and is therefore often considered remediable by injunction” 2 and is synonymous with “irreparable harm” and “nonpecuniary injury.” BLACK’S LAW 3 DICTIONARY, Injury (11th ed. 2019). The MCC also incorporated by reference the 4 Preliminary Injunction’s finding of irreparable harm, which included a finding that 5 the Bank’s conduct “will likely cause [class members] to be evicted, go hungry, or be 6 denied necessary medical care.” MCC ¶109 & Ex. A at 2.

7 Even if the MCC had not contained express allegations of “irreparable harm” 8 and “irreparable injury,” it is well established that “retrospective damages are not an 9 adequate remedy for the prospective harm that injunctions are designed to prevent.”
10 Graham v. Cent. Garden & Pet Co., No. 22-cv-06507-JSC, 2023 WL 2744391, at *4
11 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 30, 2023); accord Warren v. Whole Foods Market California, Inc., 12 No. 21-cv-04577-EMC, 2022 WL 2644103, at *9 (N.D. Cal. 2022) (“because the 13 injunctive relief that Plaintiffs request ‘is prospective’ and their ‘remedy at law, 14 damages, is retrospective,’ their claim for an injunction does not appear to be barred 15 by Sonner” (citations omitted)); Dekker v. Vivint Solar, Inc., No. 19-cv-07918-WHA, 16 2022 WL 827246, at *3 (N.D. Cal. 2022) (“A remedy at law may provide adequate 17 relief for certain harms but fail to remedy others, necessitating equitable relief. ...
18 Manifest differences thus exist between, for example, the retrospective equitable 19 remedy of restitution and the prospective equitable remedy of an injunction.” 20 (citations omitted)); Souter v. Edgewell Personal Care Co., No. 20-cv-01486-TWR, 21 2022 WL 485000, at *13 (S.D. Cal. 2022) (“Plaintiff seeks relief based on a likelihood 22 of future harm for which there is no adequate remedy at law; therefore, Plaintiff has 23 properly sought and alleged entitlement to an equitable remedy.” (citation omitted)); 24 Brooks v. Thomson Reuters Corp., No. 21-cv-01418-EMC, 2021 WL 3621837, at *11 25 (N.D. Cal. 2021) (“courts have declined to apply Sonner to bar UCL claims for 26 injunctive relief, recognizing that the prospect of paying damages is sometimes 27 insufficient to deter a defendant from engaging in an alleged unlawful, unfair, or 28 fraudulent business practice” (citing cases)); Andino v. Apple, Inc., No. 20-cv-01628-

1 JAM, 2021 WL 1549667, at *5 (E.D. Cal. 2021) (“Money damages are an inadequate 2 remedy for future harm, as they will not prevent Defendant from continuing the 3 allegedly deceptive practice.”).

4 The MCC made clear that Plaintiffs were seeking injunctive relief to prevent 5 future harm, both specifically under the UCL claim for relief and in the Prayer for 6 Relief. See MCC ¶584 (seeking all available “equitable relief, including injunctive 7 relief (a) prohibiting the Bank from continuing its unfair and unlawful business 8 practices, and (b) requiring the Bank to take reasonable measures to prevent future 9 unauthorized use of EDD Debit Cards and Accounts, and (c) requiring the Bank to 10 ensure timely and adequate processing of Cardholders’ claims regarding unauthorized 11 or fraudulent use of their Cards or Accounts”); MCC Prayer 2 (seeking “permanent 12 injunctive relief prohibiting Bank of America from engaging in the wrongful conduct 13 alleged herein, including but not limited to an order making the existing Preliminary 14 Injunction permanent”). The prospective nature of the injunctive relief sought by 15 Plaintiffs distinguishes this case from those in which courts dismissed requests for 16 retrospective relief under Sonner. See, e.g., Kryzhanovskiy, 2022 WL 2345677, at *4 17 (collecting cases).

18 Accordingly, the MCC sufficiently pleaded that legal remedies would be 19 inadequate to prevent future harm to Plaintiffs, and it was clear error to rule otherwise.

20 B. Damages are not available for conduct that, although not 21 “unlawful,” nonetheless violates the UCL because it is “unfair.”

22 Plaintiffs’ UCL claim for relief in the MCC alleged the Bank’s challenged 23 conduct, even if not found to be “unlawful,” would nonetheless be actionable under 24 the UCL as “unfair” conduct. MCC ¶¶577–78. In dismissing Plaintiffs’ claim under 25 the UCL’s “unfair” prong, the Court independently erred because the only relief 26 available to remedy conduct that, although found to be not unlawful, is found to be 27 “unfair,” are the equitable remedies provided by the UCL.

1 California’s UCL broadly prohibits “any unlawful, unfair or fraudulent 2 business act or practice.” Bus. & Prof. Code §17200. “Each of these three adjectives
3 captures ‘a separate and distinct theory of liability.’” Rubio v. Cap. One Bank, 613 4 F.3d 1195, 1203 (9th Cir. 2010) (quoting Kearns v. Ford Motor Co., 567 F.3d 1120, 5 1127 (9th Cir. 2009)). The California Legislature intended the “unfair” prong to be 6 “intentionally broad,” Candelore v. Tinder, Inc., 19 Cal.App.5th 1138, 1155–56 7 (2018) (internal quotation marks omitted), to enable courts to address “the 8 innumerable new schemes which the fertility of man’s invention would contrive,” Cel- 9 Tech Commc’ns, Inc. v. L.A. Cellular Tel. Co., 20 Cal.4th 163, 181 (1999) (cleaned 10 up).

11 The UCL’s plain statutory language and the uniformly consistent California 12 case law make clear that a defendant’s conduct may be actionable under the UCL as 13 “unfair” “even if not specifically proscribed by some other law.” Id. at 180; see, e.g., 14 Zuniga v. Bank of Am., N.A., No. 14-cv-06471-MWF, 2014 WL 7156403, at *7 (C.D.
15 Cal. Dec. 9, 2014) (declining to dismiss the plaintiff’s UCL “unfair” prong claim after 16 rejecting Bank of America’s argument on a motion to dismiss that the entirety of the 17 plaintiff’s “UCL claim fails because the [] underlying fraud claim fails”). Indeed, just 18 earlier this year, the Ninth Circuit affirmed a trial court’s judgment in favor of plaintiff 19 Epic Games on its UCL claim against Apple under the “unfair” prong, 20 notwithstanding the plaintiff’s failure to prove that Apple had violated any antitrust 21 law. Epic Games, Inc. v. Apple, Inc., 67 F.4th 946, 1000–02 (2023).

22 Here, the MCC alleged the Bank’s challenged conduct is actionable under the 23 UCL both because (1) it is “unlawful” to the extent it violates predicate statutes, 24 regulations, or common law, and in the alternative, because (2) even if not unlawful, 25 that conduct is “unfair” because it offends public policy and constitutes immoral, 26 unethical, oppressive, and unscrupulous activities that caused substantial injury to 27 Plaintiffs and class members, and because the harm caused by the Bank’s conduct 28 outweighs its potential benefits. See MCC ¶¶576–82.

1 In dismissing the UCL claim on the ground that Plaintiffs’ other claims for 2 relief, if successful, would provide adequate legal remedies, the Court overlooked that 3 Plaintiffs had sought the equitable remedies of restitution and injunctive relief under 4 the UCL to remedy the Bank’s challenged practices on the theory that, even if the 5 Court ultimately concluded that those practices were not unlawful, it could still find 6 them to be actionable under the UCL as “unfair” business practices. MCC ¶¶577–78; 7 see Dkt. 90 (MTD Opp.) at 40–43. In that circumstance, Plaintiffs would have 8 no remedy at law (much less an adequate one) because no “law” would have been 9 violated. See Zeiger v. WellPet LLC, 526 F.Supp.3d 652, 687 (N.D. Cal. 2021) (“The 10 core equitable rule is that simply having any remedy at law is not sufficient to 11 foreclose equitable relief; instead, the remedy must be adequate”). Even when a 12 plaintiff’s legal and equitable claims are “rooted in the same theory,” a plaintiff has 13 no adequate remedy at law when the “elements of a [legal] claim require proof of 14 conduct beyond that which must be shown to establish liability under the UCL” 15 Elgindy v. AGA Serv. Co., No. 20-cv-06304-JST, 2021 WL 1176535, at *15 (N.D. Cal.
16 Mar. 29, 2021); see also In re JUUL Labs, Inc., Mktg., Sales Pracs. & Prod. Liab.
17 Litig., 497 F.Supp.3d 552, 639 (N.D. Cal. 2020) (Sonner does not bar a UCL claim 18 where the “allegations regarding unfair conduct are not [] coextensive with plaintiffs’ 19 legal claims”).

20 In Elgindy, the court held that Sonner did not bar plaintiffs’ claims seeking 21 restitution under the fraudulent prong of the UCL and False Advertising Law because 22 their common-law fraud claim, though based on the same theory and factual allegations 23 as their UCL fraud claim, required proof of additional elements. See 2021 WL 1176535, 24 at *15. Likewise here, Plaintiffs’ legal claims require proof of different elements than 25 their claims under the UCL “unfair” prong, the latter of which only requires a showing 26 that “‘the utility of the defendant’s conduct’” is outweighed by “‘the gravity of the harm 27 to [Plaintiffs].’” Epic Games, 67 F.4th at 1000 (quoting Progressive W. Ins. Co. v.
28 Superior Court, 135 Cal.App.4th 263, 285 (2005)) (explaining that the “balancing test”

1 for unfairness applies in consumer cases, while the “tethering test” for unfairness applies 2 in competitor cases).² Sonner therefore does not preclude Plaintiffs from pursuing their 3 UCL claims for restitution and injunctive relief under the “unfair” prong, and it was 4 clear error for the Court to conclude otherwise.

5 C. It was clear error to deny Plaintiffs leave to amend their UCL claim 6 to allege inadequate legal remedies more specifically.

7 One possible reading of the Court’s MTD Order (Dkt. 126) is that the Court 8 dismissed Plaintiffs’ UCL claim with prejudice because the MCC did not expressly 9 allege that Plaintiffs had no adequate remedy at law. If that were one of the grounds 10 for dismissal, the Court’s failure to allow Plaintiffs leave to amend to include that 11 allegation was also clear error.

12 Courts “should freely give leave [to amend] when justice so requires,” Fed. R.
13 Civ. P. 15(a)(2), and this command should be “applied with extreme liberality.”
14 Desertrain v. City of Los Angeles, 754 F.3d 1147, 1154–55 (9th Cir. 2014). District 15 courts routinely grant leave to amend UCL claims that they dismiss under Sonner, 16 particularly where, as here, there has been no previous order of dismissal. See, e.g.,

18 ² The “tethering test” requires the alleged unfairness to be “tied to a ‘legislatively 19 declared’ policy.” Lozano v. AT&T Wireless Servs., Inc., 504 F.3d 718, 736 (9th Cir.
20 2007). Even if the tethering test were applicable here, Plaintiffs alleged facts showing 21 that the Bank’s unfair conduct directly undermined the legislatively declared public 22 policy of various laws. For example, Plaintiffs alleged that the Bank engaged in 23 “unfair” conduct by “failing to provide reasonable or adequate customer service 24 assistance to Plaintiffs and other Class Members who complained of fraud, despite 25 representing to them that such assistance would be available ‘24/7,’ and despite the 26 Bank’s awareness of rampant third-party fraud on EDD Debit Cards and Accounts,” 27 and by “establishing ‘customer service’ procedures designed to frustrate and obstruct 28 efforts by Plaintiffs and Class Members to file their fraud claims.” MCC ¶577(g)–(h), (o); see also FAMCC ¶577(g)–(h), (o). Even if such conduct does not itself violate EFTA, it contravenes the spirit and legislatively declared purpose of EFTA, “[t]he primary objective” of which “is the provision of individual consumer rights,” 15 U.S.C. §1693(b), including the right to seek and timely receive reimbursement for unauthorized transactions on one’s account, 15 U.S.C. §1693f.

1 Guthrie v. Transamerica Life Ins. Co., 561 F.Supp.3d 869, 875 (N.D. Cal. 2021).
2 Indeed, this Court itself, when dismissing claims under Sonner, has often granted 3 leave to amend. See, e.g., McCraner v. Wells Fargo & Co., No. 21-cv-1246-LAB, 4 2023 WL 2728719, at *8–9 (S.D. Cal. Mar. 30, 2023); Brand, 2023 WL 3225409, at 5 *4, *9; McNamara v. Wells Fargo & Co., No. 21-cv-1245-LAB, Dkt. 20 at 17–18 6 (S.D. Cal. Mar. 30, 2022). Because Plaintiffs could amend their UCL claim to allege 7 the inadequacy of legal remedies, including for each of the reasons stated above, it 8 was clear error to have denied them that opportunity.

9 The FAMCC, which is now the operative complaint, expressly alleges that 10 Plaintiffs have no adequate remedy at law—both with respect to their request for 11 prospective injunctive relief, and for equitable restitution to remedy the Bank’s unfair 12 business practices under the UCL. See FAMCC ¶285 (alleging that Plaintiffs’ “legal 13 remedies are inadequate to prevent future harm from the Bank’s unlawful and unfair
14 conduct that is the subject of this Complaint, and that is or would be ongoing but for 15 the preliminary injunction the consolidated Yick plaintiffs obtained in June 2021”);
16 FAMCC ¶575 (incorporating this allegation in the UCL claim for relief). If an express 17 allegation is required, that statement, viewed in conjunction with the FAMCC’s 18 substantive allegations, should be sufficient to allege inadequate legal remedies at this 19 threshold pleading stage.

20 If the Court were nonetheless to conclude that the FAMCC is still insufficient 21 to satisfy Sonner even with the addition of this allegation at ¶285, Plaintiffs should be 22 permitted to amend their UCL claim to address whatever concerns the Court expresses 23 with respect to those allegations, so that Plaintiffs can attempt to cure whatever 24 remaining defects the Court identifies.

25 D. It was clear error to dismiss the UCL claim with prejudice, and 26 thereby to preclude Plaintiffs from re-filing that claim in state court.

27 Even if this Court were to conclude that it appropriately dismissed Plaintiffs’ 28 UCL claim without leave to amend for failure to allege inadequate legal remedies,

1 binding Ninth Circuit precedent provides that “the district court should have dismissed 2 [Plaintiffs’] UCL claim without prejudice to refiling the same claim in state court.”
3 Guzman v. Polaris Indus. Inc., 49 F.4th 1308, 1314 (9th Cir. 2022), cert. denied sub 4 nom. Polaris Indus. Inc. v. Albright, No. 22-987, 2023 WL 3937623 (U.S. June 12, 5 2023) (emphasis added). This is because “a federal court that dismisses a claim for 6 lack of equitable jurisdiction necessarily declines to assume the jurisdiction and 7 decide the cause.” Id. “Thus, a federal court’s pre-merits determination to withhold 8 relief is binding on other federal courts, but not on courts outside the federal system 9 that might properly exercise their own jurisdiction over the claim.” Id.; accord
10 Clevenger v. Welch Foods Inc., No. 20-cv-1859-CJC, 2022 WL 18228288, at *5 n.3 11 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 14, 2022). Simply stated, if this Court lacks equitable jurisdiction over 12 a particular state court claim, the required approach under Ninth Circuit law is to 13 dismiss without prejudice, and thus to enable Plaintiffs to refile that claim in a state 14 court that does have equitable jurisdiction.

15 V. CONCLUSION

16 For the foregoing reasons, Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court vacate 17 its dismissal with prejudice of the UCL claim, and deny Defendant’s motion to dismiss 18 the UCL claim, based on the following rulings:

19 (1) Plaintiffs’ MCC sufficiently pled that their legal remedies are inadequate 20 with respect to preventing future harm; and

21 (2) Plaintiffs’ MCC sufficiently pled that their legal remedies are inadequate 22 because no legal remedies exist for their UCL claims under the “unfair” prong.

23 In the alternative, Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court vacate its 24 dismissal of the UCL claim with prejudice, based on the following rulings (presented 25 here in Plaintiffs’ order of preference):

26 (3) Plaintiffs were entitled to leave to amend their UCL allegations to plead 27 inadequate legal remedies, and Plaintiffs’ now-operative complaint sufficiently pleads 28 inadequate legal remedies (see, e.g., FAMCC ¶285); or
