All Comments:

Joan Murphy, Self: background checks are imperative!; Katherine Warren, Self: Do you understand the word MOBILE? This would ban cities and counties from requiring background checks, ID or fingerprinting from owners of a food trucks before it issues a license. Possibly allowing criminals to use food trucks serving our children.; Jodi Paulsen, Self: Seems opposite of what the state should be doing. Public safety is increased if these were actually required statewide, not banned.; Judith Robbins, Self: Elimination of background checks makes all who go to food trucks potential unsafe. Safety should be a priority and not eliminating measures to remove oversight to public vendors. Ice cream vendors dealing with children should have even more checks!; Laurie Stoff, Self: This could open the public up to harm by allowing anyone to serve food without proper background checks; Alisa McMahon, Self: Preemption of local authority.; Lisa Olson, Self: This is another example of GOP state officials seeking control over cities and counties. While they deplore the feds dictating laws for states, they turn around and do the same for the cities and counties within their state. STOP OVERREACHING.; Michael Fiflis, Self: Eliminating background checks would expose the public to harm.; Cynthia Couture, Self: This is a public safety issue.; Catherine Sigmon, Self: Banning cities from licensing food trucks??? We should rely on our state and cities to watch out for the public welfare.; Susan Morris, Self: House attorneys may have reasoned this is not a self-interested bill, but I call BS.; Brenda Nelson, Self: This bad bill could harm public safety and makes no sense. OPPOSE; Jeri Dow, Self: this is not in the interest of public safety; Kathy Pyner, Self: Law abiding citizens do not object to fingerprinting and background checks. teachers and city volunteers are all fingerprinted. This is to prevent crime.; Penny Boone, Self: NO! Eliminating these checks entirely will certainly harm public safety.; Rebecca Haynes, Self: The state no longer requires these checks, so if cities and counties don't make them, it is a risk to public safety.; Mary Nelson, Self: Local governments should decide this if the state isn't interested in public safety; Carol Garnett, Self: I like the safety feature and it is important to allow counties and cities to monitor this.; Jennifer Dawson, Self: Eliminating these checks entirely would harm public safety.; Jean Meconi, Self: Eliminating checks on prepared food providers endangers public safety. I want to know if the food vendor has been convicted of selling and lacing food with drugs.; Cynthia Wagner, Self: Eliminating these checks entirely would harm public safety.; Nelson Morgan, Self: Let cities and counties decide their own matters about background checks, which are not required by the state.; Linda Paul, Self: Why would we want to ban something that makes us safer?; Gary Townsend, Self: Eliminating these checks entirely would harm public safety.; Dan Roskey, Self: While I understand the desire to make things easier for small business owners, food trucks are TRUCKS. They drive places. So the drivers do need to demonstrate that they can be trusted to operate safely on the road.; Angela Buer, Self: This is overreach, the state already no longer requires these checks, but because food trucks are mobile by nature, it SHOULD be up to local cities and counties to require checks on public safety issues. I OPPOSE; Margaret Tinsley, Self: The state no longer does these checks. Before I buy food from a food truck I'd like to know that someone checked them out. Please let the cities and counties do so. Please vote no,; Jacqueline deSa, Self: The state no longer requires these checks, which may include criminal, local civil court and driving history (remember, a food truck drives from place to place), instead leaving it up to cities and counties. Eliminating would harm public safety.; William Bowlus-Root, Self: These seem like reasonable checks for a local jurisdiction to be able to require of operators of food trucks. Why are we trying to make it easier for them to hurt people?; Marcia Tingley, Self: Since the state no longer requires these checks, eliminating them completely would harm public safety.; Theresa Ryan, Self: Eliminating these checks would harm public safety.; Aaron Essif, Self: The state no longer requires the checks discussed requirements. So it is up to the cities and counties.; Jeanmarie Haney, Self: The state no longer requires these checks, which may include criminal, local civil court and driving history, instead leaving it up to cities and counties. Eliminating these checks entirely would compromise public safety.; Lisa Maczura, Self: The bill does not promote public safety, does it? Wonder why.; Janie Smieszek, Self: Could harm public safety; John Cummings, Self: Adversely affects public safety; Karen Brown, Self: Totally unregulated business has proven harmful to the the public good, time after time. Don't take away the right of our city and county governments to protect us from unscrupulous or criminal business people.; Patricia Louise Cue, Self: Eliminating these checks entirely would harm public safety; Jillian Ryan, Self: Eliminating these checks entirely would harm public safety.; Allen Brown, Self: I oppose HB2118. Eliminating background checks would harm public safety. Please vote NO on HB2118.; Marin Lersch, Self: Removing this license requirement could harm public health if the food truck operator has a dangerous or problematic background. These trucks are out and about in communities and should be thoroughly vetted.; Tiffany Hall, Self: Banning cities + counties from doing these checks would harm public safety as the state already doesn't collect this information. Does the sponsor really want absolutely no one making these checks??; Katherine Lathrop, Self: Eliminating these checks by cities and counties would harm public safety. I thought you were for the public being safe Neal?

Greater than $1,000,000,000	$15,000	$22,500
$1,000,000,000 > $200,000,000	$5,000	$7,500

$49,999,999 > $25,000,000	$500	$750

Sponsor: Representative Way, LD 15
Committee on Commerce

Overview

Redefines firefighter as applicable to the workers' compensation statutes.

History

The Industrial Commission of Arizona administers and enforces state laws relating to the protection of life, health, safety and welfare of Arizona's employees, including workers' compensation. Workers' compensation insurance provides coverage of medical costs, rehabilitation and lost wages for an employee who has suffered an injury or illness in the course of performing job related duties (Title 23, Chapter 6, A.R.S.).

A peace officer or firefighter in Arizona who is injured or killed while traveling to or from the workplace is eligible for workers' compensation benefits, provided that the individual was not engaging in criminal activity. Statute asserts that an employer is not liable for any civil damages if the peace officer or firefighter's conduct caused the harm during travel (A.R.S. § 23-1021.01).

Provisions

1. Redefines firefighter to mean a professional firefighter who is a member of a city, town, county or fire district fire department. (Sec. 1)
